Library millage change facing regional study

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Members of the City Council voted Monday night to name five Romulus representatives to a Wayne County District Library Planning Committee to study future needs of the local public library.

County Librarian Douglas A. Whitaker appeared with City Librarian Diane Hazen to explain, "the Wayne County Library is being restructured as a district library."

He said restructuring will clarify and strengthen local control of library services and will allow the library to seek district-wide voted millage for operating expenses.

He urged the City Council members to join the planning committee so that better funding plans could be discussed. Currently, he said, Romulus Public Library is ranked 14th out of 14 area libraries in funding.

Whitaker said Romulus Library has three options: it can remain the same, go independent or become a district library.

"A 1993 survey showed that local library members said their favorite improvements would be the addition of more books and library service hours, particularly on week-ends," he said.

Changes in structure would allow different millage rates to be set, some 1 mill and others 2 mills.

Whitaker said he will be visiting the 24 Wayne County Libraries to see how many want to join such a planning group.

Redford Library has already dropped out of consideration, he said, and he expects Westland also to nix participation.

Others, including Belleville, have already agreed to participate in the study cycle, he said.

The resolution to join the planning unit was approved by a 6-0 vote, with Councilman Jimmie Raspberry abstaining.

Group continues well protest

By AL POST

With election day only a week away, the Romulus Environmentalists Caring About People (RECAP) citizens group spoke out almost without opposition Monday night, as they pressed their vote "Yes" campaign in support of the environmental protection millage issue before the City Council and the local cable TV cameras.

R.P. Lilly, a regular RECAP weekly speaker, orchestrated a loud "PU" refrain with fellow group members, as he read parts of a letter alleging that a well up north owned by Doug Wicklund casts a heavy foul odor, particularly during the summer months. Wicklund also is president of the local Environmental Disposal Services (EDS).

Wicklund on Tuesday afternoon, downplayed the letter stating that the writer "has tried to create problems for me in the past because he forfeited royalties, when we converted the oil well into a disposal well in October 1990."

Wicklund said, "It's been sour grapes from him ever since and he has threatened to write numerous letters against me. If there really was a problem, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources would have closed the well down."

Another RECAP member, Paul Lewkowicz, engaged Councilman Jimmie Raspberry in a brief debate regarding his planned vote on the environmental millage issue.

Incumbents seek return to seats on school board

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Stating the Romulus School District "has been to (economic) hell and back," 12-year Romulus Community School Board incumbents Edward J. Wilkerson, 46, and Mary M. King, 62, are urging district voters to give them new four-year terms.

Both incumbents are citing their experience in successfully handling economic and educational crises in the past.

The campaign was heightened last weekend as both candidates answered repeated questions on the state of the district's financial health. They mailed out their official campaign materials and also pounded in their re-election yard signs about the district.

King, who has retired from her job as secretary/rental agent for Oakbrook Villa Townhouses, stated the fact she has been named a certified school board member and was given an award of distinction from the Michigan Association of School Boards.

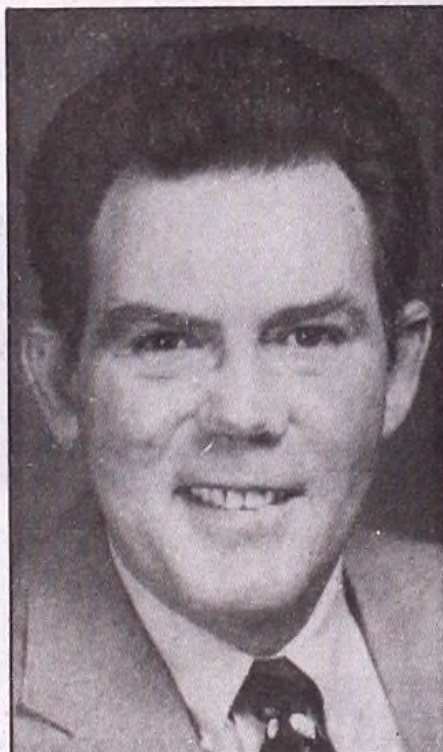

Prior to her rental agent job, King worked as a computer programmer/statistician for Burroughs Corp.

King, wife of Charles E. King, is the mother of four children and grandmother of three grandchildren. Her grandchildren all attend Romulus schools.

Since first taking her school board seat in 1982, King says she has been working hard to stay abreast of local, county and statewide school issues.

"In addition to our regular Monday night meetings, I attend the Wayne County Association of School Board meetings (where she has been a long-time treasurer) and often visit the legislature in Lansing to discuss educational issues," she said.

Since retiring last year,

Edward Wilkerson

King said, she has re-invested her time in the district schools by involving herself in classroom and leadership programs.

"I know experience counts," King said, and "it counts even more in crisis times like these. I know where to go for the answers we need in these financially troubled times, and I am not afraid to offer new technology concepts to keep our computer system at its peak of value for students."

King said one such possibility is bringing in satellite computer options to local students from universities around the nation when financial cuts limit other types of studies.

"We have been through economic hell during the past 12 years and it looks like some of those problems could return as a result of so-called school finance reforms," she said.

King is pleased with the campaign style of her opponents she refers to as her friends, and she is sure the high road campaign will continue through the remaining days of the voter drives.

Mary King

Her fellow incumbent, Wilkerson, as expected also is campaigning on the strength of his tenure on the board, during which time he has served as board president and vice president, as well as chairman of the board's finance committee.

Wilkerson, one of the tough questioners on the board, states proudly "there were times my single voice was instrumental in changing other board members' minds."

The veteran trustee also stressed that "We must stay financially balanced to assure the continuation of all programs, because the state's ability to fund education in the past has been shabby to say the least."

At the same time, Wilkerson said the district cannot short change its students in the field of technology, following the support district voters have given in the past.

"I made a promise to keep staff development, software selection and program implementation at the highest levels

Challengers request 'change'

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Two spirited Romulus Community School Board challengers are continuing to press the "time for a change" issue, claiming that curriculum programs are not being enacted, the school administration is not welcoming volunteerism enough and technology funding is not tight fisted enough.

The challengers, Julie A. Oleszkowicz and Judie Gondek, revealed they are out knocking on voters' doors asking for support next Monday stating that incumbents Edward Wilkerson and Mary King have lost touch with the school system, because they "no longer have children in local schools."

Oleszkowicz, a former substitute secretary in the school district, complains her opponents are not aware of some listings of the school curriculum are not being followed, such as science labs in the Romulus Middle School.

She also states that while other school districts across the U.S. received "Smart Lab" equipment for nothing in return for allowing tours of their educational facilities, Romulus paid more than $100,000 for their computer systems and is getting nothing back for the inconvenience of current tours.

A graduate of Eastern Michigan University (1972), Oleszkowicz says parent volunteers are only sought out primarily for school fair duty. "When I volunteered to research grants in the past, I was told my help wasn't needed," she said.

Oleszkowicz feels her past employment as an account representative with Playtex Apparel and her position as Wayne County area director of the American Cancer Society, will help her in her decision making processes in the future.

Oleszkowicz continued to complain that she is not sure that the Romulus school district is preparing students properly for the future.

"We tend to operate under the assumption that all students learn at the same pace," she said, "and we are trying to graduate the 'generic' student rather than stretching the students' minds and goals."

Her campaign team member, Gondek, also charges that the school academic goals are not being met for all students. "We have gifted students being virtually ignored, because it is assumed that they are bright enough to find their own way."

"We have athletes, who are being groomed for college and pro sports, with little or no thought as to how they will suc-

Mayor leads millage approval battle effort

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally and four city council members have strongly endorsed the 1 mill proposal for environmental protection which appears on the June 13 ballot.

McAnally stated, "I urge everyone, who cares about Romulus to vote 'Yes' on the environmental millage.

"The establishment of a dedicated environmental protection fund is the only way the citizens can be assured that their community will be able to defend itself against the unwanted intrusion of hazardous and toxic materials," the mayor continued.

"Twenty-five to $30 a year for five years is a very small price to pay for a great security," McAnally concluded.

Mayor pro-tem Mary Ann Banks said, "I believe people should vote for the environmental ballot proposal because not only are we experiencing a legal issue at the present, but we must be ever watchful and vigilant in protecting our environment in the future.

"I find it hard to believe that people would not be interested in protecting their own community from the possibility of it being a place where toxic and hazardous waste may be dumped," Banks continued.

"This ballot proposal is not merely a question of 'new taxes,' but for the protection of our citizens to keep our city environmentally clean now and in the future and for the future of our children. Vote yes for the kids," Banks concluded.

Councilman Bill Wadsworth declared, "The June 13th millage vote is a very important day for the future of Romulus environment. This isn't only about the deep well, which I've opposed since the beginning. Our residents demand a better life style. Romulus being known as the dumping place for hazardous, toxic or any waste will no longer be tolerated by its citizens.

"I ask for your support with a 'Yes' vote on June 13th. It will cost the average homeowner approximately $25 per year for five years and will only be used for environmental issues. At the end of five years the millage will be removed," he said.

"Don't be fooled by a few distracters. This won't affect police, fire, school or any other city services. A 'Yes' vote will only improve the quality of life for us and our children for years to come," Wadsworth concluded.

Councilman Michael Prybyla said, "On June 13, the citizens of Romulus will be asked to vote a 1-mill city increase. This mill increase will only be used to protect the city of Romulus on environmental health issues that can only be solved by legal action.

"Whenever waste disposal companies enter city boundaries and zoning issues are challenged the city will be able to seek legal counsel to safeguard the city. A special fund will need your 'Yes' vote. I support the June 13th Proposal A issue," Prybyla concluded.

Councilman Randy Gear stated, "I would like to ask all Romulus citizens to make sure to come out and vote 'Yes' on

Mayor Beverly McAnally

Proposal A for environmental protection on June 13. This vote is very important to ensure the future health, safety and welfare of our children and community as a whole.

"Also a 'Yes' vote will enable us to continue the fight against any other projects coming to our city that could pollute or contaminate our earth, natural water supply or the air we breathe," Gear said.

"Remember citizens of Romulus you can make a difference by voting 'Yes' on Proposal A and working to save our environment, because its the only one we have," Gear concluded.

3 city councilmen opposed to millage

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus council members Ellis Pennington, Jimmie Raspberry and Noah "Pete" Bergeron recently revealed their stand on the proposed 1-mill increase.

Pennington stated that although he is not in favor of having the environmental liquid injection well in Romulus, he prefers leaving the millage issue up to the city voters.

"We have already spent over $200,000 on the lawsuit (against Environmental Disposal Services), and we are no closer to settlement than we were when we started," Pennington said. "We are paying federal and state taxes for environmental protection, and I am reluctant to pay more to fight what we feel is a losing battle. The only persons to get benefits from this battle are the lawyers who are laughing their way to the banks."

Pennington said he wouldn't support or work against the millage effort because he wants the citizens to have the final say on the environmental issue. He said he is not "afraid to take a position," but says he favors having those who are "more knowledgeable decide."

Raspberry, however, said he was against the millage "because there is no outline of purpose for it, and Romulus citizens are already paying high enough taxes."

The only persons to get benefits from this battle are the lawyers who are laughing their way to the banks.
- Ellis Pennington

He said he also doesn't see a draft plan on how the city expects to spend the money raised by the millage.

As a retired Ford Motor Co. employee, who currently is paying $3,260 in city real estate taxes, Raspberry said, he is strongly opposed to the millage.

"We have already spent $255,000 in defending what is alleged to be an environmental problem, but we can't afford to offer valued city employees a pay raise," Raspberry said.

The councilman cited the fact that the city is also paying $140,000 for asbestos removal and claims he feels the requested millage is an "unnecessary tax."

Raspberry added that state and federal regulatory agencies need to be the units to fight the city's battle on this issue.

Bergeron, who voted against the millage effort in the past, could not be reached for comment at presstime.

Millage backer outlines safety

By R.J. LILLY
Special to Romulus Roman

The City of Romulus is currently seeking approval from Romulus voters to increase the total millage from its current 10 mills to 11 mills for five years.

This additional one mill will be dedicated solely for environmental protection.

- One mill equals $1 for every $1,000 a home is assessed. Example if a voter's home is assessed at $28,000, the additional tax would be $28 per year for five years or about $2.30 a month.

Members of Romulus Environmentalists Caring About People (RECAP) feel the millage "is a small price to pay for some our future environmental solutions".

- When money is voted on by electors for a specific purpose, those funds collected can only be used for that purpose. If the elected officials violate that they can be prosecuted.
- We, as citizens of this community, need to take a close look at not just our city, but the surrounding communities and the entire state and the current dump sites, solid waste refuse sites, landfills etc.

We now know that some things that were buried by our parents and grandparents are now considered hazardous and even toxic waste that we discover seeping in our ground water. What do we do?

We turn to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (MDNR) for them to clean up the problem. Does that work?

Sometimes we are put on a list which is given priority numbering. If our priority number is high, very dangerous, then we may get fast action, if our number is low, who knows?

Does the MDNR have funds to clean up all the dump sites in Michigan? No!

You tell me, who pays for that. That's right, we do because all the money comes from the taxpayers and until someone takes action, materials stay there polluting our water, our air and our property.

With this additional one mill, at least the City of Romulus would have some additional revenue for the sole purpose of fighting environmental issues, whether it be in the courts, paying lawyers or cleaning up the mess ourselves.

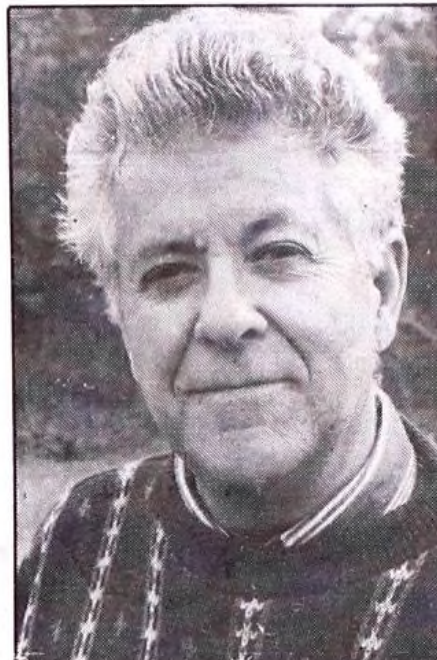

That small additional revenue may just be enough to make the difference. Maybe not.

All we are sure of is that the city cannot do it without our help. We are all in this together. This is not an injection well issue, it goes far beyond that.

- Currently our city maintains one of the lowest millage rates in Michigan. The mayor has always insisted on not raising taxes in fact, the city has reduced taxes whenever possible.

There has been recent controversy over the city's fund balance, which some consider a savings account. The city has only one main source of funds, you the taxpayers.

Is the city to be blamed for trying to save the taxpayers money? We don't think so.

R.P. Lilly

- Mayor McAnally states "There is already in place an Environmental Commission composed of the members of the Zoning Board of Appeals. "However I pledge if the millage effort succeeds I will ask the council to appoint a Citizens Advisory Environmental Fund Committee of 7 to 9 members."

Thus RECAP members join with Mayor McAnally in urging a "Yes" vote on June 13 for the millage proposal and the health, safety and welfare of our community.

ceed without the ability to compete in the academic arena," Gondek continued.

The first-time candidate also stated, "As a volunteer parent, I feel it is imperative to become involved in your child's education. Parents should never feel they don't have the right to go into their child's building and offer their services," Gondek said.

She also recommended that parents, who are unable to be involved in daytime school activities, at least attend nighttime school board meetings.

Gondek also claimed, "Many times when the construction project manager came before the school board with cost overruns (sometimes due to errors in construction), the board approved these payments with little more than a slap on the wrist."

Both candidates said it was time to replace the 12-year trustees with mothers, who still have students in the school system.

Wilkerson and his wife, Lorraine, have four children and one grandchild.

Having won the bronze star and the Purple Heart during his U.S. Army tour in Vietnam War, Wilkerson now is active with the Romulus Veterans of Foreign Wars and has served with the VFW Honor Guard.

Wilkerson feels board accountability, school finances, classroom technology and long-term experience are the key issues of the 1994 campaign, and he believes he represents the best options on all four issues.

Reading program to begin at library

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

The Romulus Public Library summer reading program will begin on June 22, according to Librarian Youth Services director Shelley DeLano.

Children of all ages will be building totems to show their weekly reading achievements, DeLano explained. Youngsters not of age to read will be adding feathers to their headbands for each week they listen to books read at home.

Registration will begin June 13 at the temporary library site at the old Mount Pleasant Elementary School at 39000 Superior Road. All of the reading programs are free.

The summer reading calendar includes the following: June 28-Reading Begins; June 22-storyteller Dawn Daniels will read American folktales at 1 p.m.; June 28 Gary Dunn will provide an incredible insect program "Bugs on Wheels" at 6:30 p.m.; July 6-traditional story teller Linda Day will offer Campfire Stories at 1:30 p.m.; July 13- Mary Margaret Retelle will discuss animals we would see in the woods at 1 p.m.; July 20-camp out with a good book at the library and join a craft project at 1 p.m.; July 27-Bob Wittershelm and his animal friends from Oakwoods Metro Park will be on hand for a program at 1 p.m.; Aug. 3-a K-9 team demonstration will be presented by the Wayne County Metropolitan Airport Police at 1 p.m.; and Aug. 5 will be the last day to record reading time at the library.

A final party for summer readers will begin at 10:30 a.m. Aug. 10 featuring Ming the Magnificent and his magic.

Millage opponent cites costs

by MARYANN GOODMAN
Special to Romulus Roman

On June 13 the citizens of Romulus will be asked to vote on a property tax increase. If passed this ballot proposal would amend the City Charter to allow an assessment of one additional mill, or $1.00 per $1,000 of the state equalized value for each property in the city.

A total of $2.5 million would be generated or $500,000 annually over five years.

The Vote No Tax Committee of Romulus feels this ballot proposal is completely unnecessary, unreasonably vague and blatantly misleading. For these reasons the citizens of Romulus should vote a resounding "No" to this property tax increase.

Voters are asked to consider the following:

- The city of Romulus has no duty to clean up contaminated landfills that it does not own or operate. The Michigan Environmental Response Act, commonly known as the "polluter's pay" law, requires only the actual landfill owner or operator to clean up contamination.

If passed, the environmental millage will impose an additional tax on the citizens of Romulus for something it has no responsibility for, namely, cleaning up contamination caused by polluters.

- Both the federal and state governments have funds available to clean up contaminated sites, when the polluter refuses, has no money, the property is abandoned or the company that is responsible is no longer in business.
- An additional local tax is unnecessary because the various state and federal environmental laws are succeeding in forcing private companies to clean up their pollution.

For instance in Romulus, at the Northline Drum Site at Northline, between Wayne Road and I-275, the responsible companies have spent over $6 million cleaning up the site under Environmental Protection Agency's supervision.

Likewise, pollution problems associated with Detroit Metropolitan Airport are being resolved by those responsible.

- This millage proposal, if passed, will give city officials unbridled discretion to spend tax dollars on virtually anything it wishes, so long as it somehow relates to "environmental protection."

This proposal should be viewed for what it really is—a backhanded attempt to stop the Environmental Disposal Systems' injection well at any cost to placate a small but vocal group of citizens opposed to the well.

- This new tax is wasteful and unnecessary as Romulus citizens pay federal and state taxes for their agencies to protect our environment. Why must we pay three governments to get environmental protection?
- We ask you "will the tax increase help schools, police and fire protection, roads or maintenance of them, recreation or youth programs?" The answers are obviously "No."

Save your money by voting "No" on the June 13th millage proposal.

The above information was gathered from information provided by the Vote No Tax Committee and endorsed by VNTC volunteers Junior Block and John Kenosian.

City Clerk Linda Choate praised the audience for its attitude throughout the meeting and urged RECAP members to visit her office to pick up election day campaign rules.

"It is critical you know the rules on distributing campaign literature near election voting places," she said.

No EDS spokesperson attended the council session.

Voters on Monday will be asked to vote on the millage issue and to elect two school board trustees.

Protest

Raspberry contends he will express his opinion in the voting booth on Monday.

Lewkowicz then told Raspberry, "I still support you Jimmie, but I wish you would tell us your position on the millage issue."

Former council candidate Gwen Sibert warned EDS that she and her friends were knocking on doors urging residents to vote "Yes" on the millage issue.

She also revealed that Detroit Councilman Clyde Cleveland, who is challenging Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara's re-election bid, was visiting Romulus this week to see why McNamara was not more vocal on the EDS injection well issue.

Citizen Ramon Underwood also urged voters to cast "Yes" votes on the millage stating his house stopped being his "family's dream home" last fall, when they learned they were near a hazardous/non-hazardous well.

Underwood said $30 a year was not too much to spend to protect the city against future polluters. "Help us stamp out this madness, help us convince EDS its time to leave town, but most of all let's win one for the home team."

City Community Development Director Jane Downing called the creation of the environmental protection fund "totally essential" since the city is working hard to attract new businesses, protect its heritage

Memorial Day: A day of remembrance, respect

Since the majority of us have never served in the military, let alone in combat, it's not a complete surprise that Memorial Day is not considered one of the big holidays on our calendar.

A holiday designed to honor a particular group, I suppose, will mostly be of interest to that group.

But as I tell what I'm thinking about Memorial Day, it's not enough to say that we think too little about the sacrifices that have been made for our freedom. We certainly do, but I'm afraid we've reached a point where we're even forgetting something so crucial as why they sacrificed their lives.

The pictures were grainy, it was all black and white, and who was this Churchill guy? Where was Arthur Kent?

To a generation that has known no war other than Desert Storm - now that was a cool TV war, gripping us with the drama of whether the CNN reporters would make it out of their hotel - World War II may seem distant and largely irrelevant.

Neither my generation nor my kids' generation has ever been faced with a direct threat to the freedom of this nation, and I think too many of us view World War II veterans as a bunch of old guys who put on uniforms and tell stores, not as a unique group of people who did something important.

We can't relate to young men who were just starting families when they had to go off for several years, or in some cases, forever, to preserve the liberty of free people everywhere.

Have we left the dead of WWII, Korea and Vietnam so far behind that we no longer understand what motivated them to risk the ultimate sacrifice?

While freedom is by no means universal even today, it was not many generations ago that countries that were not free were far more numerous, and sometimes much scarier places than the ones that concern us today.

That made the United States all the more remarkable. Thousands of men went off to defend it precisely because freedom had come to define their lives. To let freedom slip away without doing everything possible to defend it - even dying - would be to render their lives less than whole.

Men who served and survived - often hard, rugged men - cannot hide their emotion when remembering those who perished alongside them.

I did not serve, and I cannot feel the emotions they are feeling. But what I cannot feel in my heart I can see in their eyes. Each of them, regardless of when or where they served, aches deeply for the loss of those who died, and each of them would rejoice if their fallen colleagues could be brought back.

But, hard as it must be for them, I suspect there is not one who would opt to bring their buddies back if the price of doing so were to sacrifice the freedom they died for in the first place.

They knew there were things larger than them. That is the ultimate in character, and it's why we honor them today and always.

Salvation Army leader resigns from post

The Salvation Army international leader, General Bramwell Tillsley, has resigned his position, only a little more than a year after he was elected to the top executive office of the Christian group.

Tillsley, of Canada, succeeded General Eva Burrows of Australia, who was only the second woman general in the Salvation Army history.

Tillsley will now be temporarily succeeded by his chief of staff, Commissioner Earl Maxwell, until a new general is elected. The Salvation Army international headquarters is located in London, England.

A Salvation Army press release said Tillsley cited health concerns for his immediate resignation and retirement.

He said, "When I was elected general in April 1993, I felt

I was in good health and ready to undertake the challenge of leading this wonderful movement.

"However, during the last few months, I have found that the very considerable burdens and demands of this office have taken their toll. Although I have done my best to continue without letting others down, I have now reached the very sad conclusion that, in the interests of the Salvation Army and of my own health, I can no longer continue as general."

A source inside the Salvation Army said that the health concern Tillsley listed in his resignation letter stemmed from a triple by-pass he underwent in recent years.

No exact time schedule has been revealed as to when a new general will be elected.

Examination scheduled in death of 53-year-old

BY LAURIE HUMPHREY
ANP Staff Writer

A Canton Township man charged with manslaughter in the death of a 53-year-old woman appeared June 3 for an examination before 35th District Court Judge John MacDonald.

Sadik Gocaj was hauling a trailer on the back of his van westbound on Palmer Road March 28 when he allegedly ignored the stop sign and continued through the intersection of Sheldon at 25 mph striking 53-year-old Melba Jean Copland of Canton Township.

The defendant is charged with manslaughter with a motor vehicle.

"There were cars going eastbound on Palmer and northbound on Sheldon. It seemed that everybody had stopped, and then the victim started into the intersection to turn on Sheldon," said Jane Wittersheim, who witnessed the accident. "This very large van then came through, hit her car broadside and pushed her to the other side of the road. I thought the car would roll over, but it clipped the car heading eastbound and ended up in the ditch."

Police reports of the incident indicate the impact of the collision sent the van and the woman's red Cavalier spiraling out of control into the vehicle of a 69-year-old Canton Township man who was traveling eastbound on Palmer Road.

Wayne Williamson testified that Copland waited at the stop sign until his white Taurus came to a complete stop, then she proceeded through the intersection.

"The van hit the Cavalier then hit the driver's side corner of my vehicle," he said. "It knocked my car sideways into a ditch and activated my air bag."

Detective William Keppen responded to the scene within 20 minutes of the accident. As part of the Accident Investigations Team, he photographed unmovable vehicles, interviewed witnesses and measured skid marks.

Testimony indicated the driver of the van braked seconds before the accident. The longest skid mark, 69 feet long, began just west of the stop sign controlling westbound Palmer. But according to Keppen,

"based upon the skid marks and the length, there is no way that van could have stopped at that stop sign."

Copland was transported by Canton Fire personnel to Annapolis Hospital in Wayne. She died shortly after transport from heart lacerations, bruises to the lungs and broken ribs.

Gocaj and a 44-year-old passenger were also transported to Annapolis Hospital for minor injuries. Williamson was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital in Ann Arbor for non-life threatening injuries.

Gregory Rohl, counsel for the defense, argued that the charges against his client were too severe.

"Manslaughter requires recklessness, and I don't believe that has occurred. Witnesses have testified that my client did use his brakes," Rohl said.

The attorney appealed to MacDonald to lessen the charges to negligent homicide, a two year misdemeanor, versus the 15-year felony. Judge MacDonald bond Gocaj over to Detroit Recorder's Court to be arraigned on manslaughter charges June 17.

Man arraigned on armed robbery

A 30-year-old Westland man who was arraigned on three counts of armed robbery and three counts of felonious firearms is suspected of committing seven more robberies, according to Westland police Sgt. Marc Stobbe.

David Michael Palmer is being held on three $500,000 cash bonds pending his June 9 preliminary examination in the Westland 18th District Court.

If convicted, Palmer faces up to life in prison on the robbery charges and a mandatory two years in prison for each firearms charge.

According to Stobbe, Palmer is suspected of committing nine armed robberies in Westland since January and one in Plymouth. Stobbe said Palmer confessed to the three armed robberies including the most recent May 29 incident at the Baskin Robbins ice cream store, 8280 N. Merriman Road.

The defendant also admitted to a May 19 armed robbery at Baskin Robbins in which he allegedly stole the entire cash register and a Feb. 24 robbery at Dandy Oil/Marathon gas station, 31425 Ann Arbor Trail, where $575 in cash was taken, according to Westland police Sgt. Donald Haigh.

The Westland man is also suspected of committing three armed robberies at Dandy Oil, four at Baskin Robbins and the March 3 armed robbery of a 23-year-old Dearborn woman of her purse at gunpoint on the 3100 block of Conway Street in Westland.

All of the Westland robberies involved the perpetrator wearing a ski mask, except for the purse robbery in which the mask was pulled over the top of the robber's head as a hat, Stobbe said.

The Baskin Robbins store owner, who wished to remain nameless, said his business has been affected by the robberies.

"Now everybody is scared to come in," the owner said.

As a result of the defendant's arrest, the owner said he hopes business will pick up again.

Romulus, Michigan 48174

June 6, 1994

Dear Editor:

When I started looking at the finances and operations of the City of Romulus for a graduate school project, I never expected to find what I did. I always viewed Mayor McAnally as sort of a kindly aunt. Her influence was critical to my decision to return to college and then to take up public administration as a career. To call in to question the management of someone I held in such high regard is very painful. Unfortunately, the seriousness of this matter requires that attention be drawn to the poor management the City currently endures.

In a recent letter to the editor of Romulus News, Romulus mayor Beverly McAnally mentioned a few items that bear closer scrutiny. Mayor McAnally states that "Citizen concern about Tax Increment Finance Authorities (TIFAs) is unfounded". This is an absolute distortion. Every day that the projects for which these "Revenue Bonds" were issued fail to produce said revenue that is designed to pay the loan, the citizens of Romulus must pay the interest anyway. One drive down Wick Road tells us that nothing that produces "revenue" is in place, or under construction, therefore, the interest payments due are coming out of the City's coffers — and your services suffer.

Besides, how many projects have we been told are going in there? Five? Ten? We've been told: $150,000 homes, $150,000 condos, new hotels, casinos, Metro World, Tiger Stadium! Not a shovel of dirt has been turned, yet the taxpayers bought that road, the lights, sewers, etc., all on promises that never came to be.

It's an old land speculator's trick: buy land cheaply, convince the local government that you'll do all kinds of stuff so the taxpayers will do things like put in roads and sewers, and watch your land value skyrocket — all on the backs of the taxpayers who get nothing. Then, you sell the land at 1000% profit. Hasn't the City heard of contracts or completion bonds (Note: a completion bond is like an insurance policy that pays if the project doesn't go in as planned)? A speculator won't go for that, but a real developer will. No other city in the area seems to be falling for this. Why is Romulus? Why put in new infrastructure on nothing more than a handshake when the old infrastructure that is in use by the taxpayers needs repair?

The mayor's grasp of the elected official's section of the City Charter also bears notice. She states "There was one vacancy on Council and there were three candidates (in 1993)". To use her phrase, "Baloney!" ALL council seats (and mayor, treasurer, and clerk) are open EVERY two years. All three non-incumbent candidates could have won.

This contempt for the citizens and the willingness of city officials to see themselves as the anointed masters of our fate is getting this city into a lot of trouble.

The mayor's letter also refutes the statement that the fire department is under-equipped. It is under-equipped. Where is the ladder truck capable of reaching the top floors of the Senior Towers? It doesn't exist. The longest ladder in the Romulus Fire Department inventory is 55 feet. The people on the top floors of the Senior Towers would sleep better if the City owned a truck capable of saving their lives. The millions of dollars the mayor states as being spent on "equipment" were in fact mostly spent on day-to-day operations.

The mayor also states that the city "must" remove the "harmful" asbestos from City Hall. We all know asbestos is dangerous, but only when it is disturbed and becomes an airborne powder. Where is the sturdy that supports the City's decision to remove "dangerous" asbestos? Why, when asked, can the city provide no evidence that asbestos, in this particular instance, had proven to be a threat? Was the lighting also dangerous? It's being replaced too. How about the new carpet, to replace the "old" (three or so years) carpet? It's all costing $2.5 million. I asked for a list of the planned alterations: I was told it would cost me $100. Remember, City Hall is only about 20 years o.d. What happens when the thing really starts to age?

The mayor has surrounded herself with appointees whose qualifications are mysterious, yet they are very well paid. Professionally-trained administrators are the norm in other communities in the region and nationwide, yet not in Romulus. Needless to say, not having trained, qualified, and competent professionals in key City positions — when that is what you are paying for, is running this city into the ground.

If one were to check the Public Administration programs, the formal training ground for department heads and the like, at local universities, you'd find a mosaic of people from all backgrounds — social and ethnic. Funny how there are no minority (other than two female) department heads in Romulus, even though there are minorities, and others, who are far better educated than our own department heads. There is no active recruitment of ALL qualified applicants for appointed positions. Jay Shafritz, the most respected author in public personnel management, says "An administrator (mayor) must seek a large number of applicants from all sources to ensure that the best-qualified applicant is chosen". Other cities take this as the gospel, getting more than 350 applicants for some high-ranking positions, nearly all with professional training, degrees, and experience. Again, personal loyalty to the mayor seems to supersede qualifications in hiring department heads.

The Community Development Director in a nearby community has years of experience, is both a lawyer and holds a Master's degree in Public Administration, yet makes about the same as our Director, who also "happens" to chair the mayor's campaign committee, who "attended" (didn't see graduated, did you?) four Michigan universities". Are we getting the best qualified person for our hard-earned tax dollars? This appointment, as with all other department head appointments, was at the sole discretion of the mayor. I have tried, yet I can get no records of the number of applicants, even though these records were requested under FOIA (Freedom of Information Act). It seems the critical qualification for appointment is personal loyalty to the mayor. That is sad. Working to build one's power to the harm of one's employers (us!) is terrible and should not be tolerated. We must take issue with these unhealthy practices.

The mayor herself makes nearly $55,000 a year — over twice what she made upon her election in 1983, eleven (11) times what the first mayor made in 1970, and half again as much as the average Romulus household. So much for the mayor's statement of an "outstanding record of managing government efficiently". Spending the city's fund balance to dangerously low levels is not in the best interest of the taxpayers of Romulus. Is spending your life savings when you aren't sure about your next paycheck wise? That's what the City is doing. No "quality business" (mayor McAnally's term) will want to locate in a city that is raising taxes and being run so poorly.

By spending our savings, the City hopes to give us a false impression that nothing needs attention. This couldn't be further from the truth. Just as in our own finances, a reasonable (10-15% of total budget) savings balance is a necessity, not an extravagance. Instead, the City is spending our fund balance down from $3 million in 1988 to the 1995 planned amount of $41,000. Sure, the City doesn't engage in illegal deficit spending, it just dips into our savings and cuts staff and services instead. The savings will be gone in 1995. What then? What service will be the first to go? Police? Fire? EMS? Road repairs have already been cut. To put it simply, spending continues while income has declined. Instead of seeking efficiency, the city seeks more taxes. One June 13th we must vote "NO!" — NO NEW TAXES!

Yours truly,

2 candidates vie for board seat

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

Residents in the Wayne-Westland school district will have the opportunity to choose one of two candidates for a four-year term on the school board next Monday.

Appointee Debra Fowlkes and former appointee Sharon Felan will be vying for the term following the recent withdrawal of candidates Gary Green and Roberta Paquette, who placed their support behind the remaining candidates.

Green revoked his petitions in favor of Fowlkes and Paquette, although she is still on the ballot, withdrew from the race in support of Felan, who served on the board from July 1992 to June 1993. Fowlkes was appointed to the board in January, an appointment for which all four candidates were considered.

Sharon Felan, a 46-year-old Wayne resident, is a former Realtor associate, who attended Central Michigan University and Washtenaw Community College. She was appointed as school board trustee in July 1992, served as Schweitzer Elementary School PTA president and was involved in the Schools of Choice Committee and Public Act 25 school improvement team.

Felan said her position on the board would mean more programs for Wayne-Westland students.

"Our children's needs are most important. We need to make a commitment to restoring academic programs ... and improving academic programs," Felan said.

Debra Fowlkes, a 37-year-old Westland resident, is a patient account representative at Pediatric Health Care Association in Ypsilanti. She graduated from Eastern Michigan University with a bachelor of science degree in English.

Appointed as school board trustee in January 1994, Fowlkes has served on the Superintendent's Advisory Committee, Schools of Choice Committee, and been a member of all offices of the Titus Elementary School Parent-Teacher Association.

Her board position would mean a more up-to-date curriculum for Wayne-Westland students.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m. June 13.

June 1, 1994

YOUR TAXES ARE GOING UP - UNLESS YOU VOTE NO JUNE 13, 1994

That's right - the City of Romulus wants to raise your property taxes 10% or 1 mill for an addition Two Million Five Hundred Thousand Dollars ($2,500,000.00), for no clearly defined reason.

There are too many unanswered questions regarding this tax.

Proposition A has just been approved to give us property tax relief. That issue was stongly supported by senior citizens and others on fixed incomes. Now, guess what? Our elected officials are jumping in with a quick property tax hike proposal "in order to provide funds for environmental protection including pending and future legal and nonlegal matter."

THIS NEW TAX IS WASTEFUL AND UNNECESSARY. We pay taxes to the Federal government so the EPA can protect our environment. We pay taxes to the State of Michigan so the DNR can protect our environment. Why must we pay three governments to get environmental protection?

What will this money be used for? Not for schools. Not for police and fire. Not for education. Not for parks and recreation. Not for roads. Not for other city services.

THIS INCREASE, IF PASSED, WILL BE SPENT ON LAWYERS - with no benefit to us taxpayers.

WE NEED YOUR HELP TO STOP THIS TAX! VOTE NOT ON JUNE 13TH!

Our fight against this tax increase is also your fight - please help us defeat this tax.

Our choices

Next Monday, voters in this area will be asked to decide some crucial issues.

And, while at first glance, the selection of school board members and the question of a 1-mill increase for environmental protection may not seem of serious importance to the well-being of our community—these choices are, in fact, very significant at this time.

We urge voters to find the time and the energy to get to the polls and vote—no matter how inconvenient it may be to their lives. The failure to exercise this right may impact far more negatively on our community and our lives as a whole than could be imagined.

Every vote counts and every choice is important. We urge voters to make the decision of the majority known so that conflicts can be resolved and decisions made in the best interest of all.

Should only a few go to the polls, and the decisions in these matters be made by only a small number of residents who may not have the concern of the whole community in mind, the seeds of disaster could be planted in our schools and in our community.

Please vote. Every vote is crucial to our community. And, while the majority may not agree with our choices, which we have outlined below, we will respect the choices made at the polls and move forward in a spirit of cooperation and good will with the newly-elected school board members. We wish all the candidates well and we commend each and every one of them for taking on the rigors and labor of a campaign.

Our choices are:

PLYMOUTH CANTON COMMUNITY SCHOOLS

For the one-year term on the Plymouth Canton Community Schools Board of Education, we would recommend Susan D. Feiten.

Feiten has attended every board of education meeting this year, even before she was elected to fill the vacancy created by Dean Swartzwelter. She has showed her interest in securing the best education possible for the students in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools through organizations like Class-size Action Partnership, which she co-chaired.

She appears interested the community concerns and presents them to the board with conviction even if they do not necessarily affect her or her children. She does not have an agenda, except to protect the education of children in the district.

For the four-year term we recommend Peggy Kalis and Mark Horvath.

Both these individuals have spent many Monday nights in the board of education building staying abreast of the most topical issues surrounding the school district and their children. They have asked questions of and offered input to current board members regarding controversial topics, but not without first doing their own homework. Their sincere belief in the school system and employees will motivate them to work for district improvements and the betterment of the entire community.

ROMULUS COMMUNITY SCHOOLS

The Romulus school trustee contest next Monday offers the classic confrontation between two long-term school board members, Mary King and Ed Wilkerson, against two friendly but determined school activists, Judie Gondek and Julie Oleszkowicz.

The contest has been extremely quiet with no official candidates' nights scheduled, no press releases from either side and no outlandish cries of revolt from the challengers.

Actually, the biggest noise in the campaign was directed at Lansing with the enactment of massive millage cuts through Proposal A that left many school districts (particularly former out-of-formula districts such as Romulus) in tough financial straits.

Wilkerson, one of the more outspoken and independent trustees, and King, an award-winning school board member, deserve new terms.

But, if Romulus voters decide that 12 years on the board

Millage request is opposed

To the editor:

On Monday, June 13, the citizens of Romulus will be faced with one of the most important choices they have faced since the city was incorporated in 1970. This choice involves a 10-percent increase in the city's property tax rate for the stated purpose of providing "environmental protection". Funny, the city doesn't have any environmental jurisdiction and has given us no plans to hire any environmental professionals. Our state and federal tax dollars provide environmental protection at a higher level. Why then, does the city propose that we pay this new tax? To pay lawyers in a lawsuit we should have never gotten into in the first place.

What this means is that the citizens of Romulus, who are currently dealing with reductions in both services and city savings (fund balance), will be asked to increase their taxes to fight a project that the city agreed to as far back as 1990. Make no mistake, that is the sole purpose for this tax increase.

We are being asked to tax ourselves so the city can reverse itself at will. This is not good government. Although the mayor and nearly every council member now serving who was also serving in 1990 agreed that the EDS project was beneficial to Romulus, they now wish to reverse themselves - and we are asked to pay the bill. Clearly, the time to decide was 1990-91 before any work had begun. If for no other reason, we should be upset because everybody let this issue lay from 1990 to just before the 1993 election. Talk about grandstanding. Why the silence?

We have spent $282,738.98 so far on the EDS fight, depleting our city's savings in the most uncertain time in Michigan tax history and the case hasn't even gone to court yet. Services are being cut and the mayor herself warns of more service cuts and cuts in staff. Estimates of income and expenses in 1992-93, based on information contained in the 1993 year-end audit (Comprehensive Annual Finance Report of CAFR), were extremely far off of acceptable standards, yet the city proposes that it be allowed to continue to spend our savings to levels that are dangerously low.

I went to the May 23, council meeting to tell the city that leaving a fund balance of $43,000 (when city income and expense estimates were each off over $800,000 in 1992-93) was too dangerous to be considered. I was attacked by both members of council and members of RECAP who sought to discredit my source of figures. I used the 1993 CAFR—the year-end audit for last year, as the source of all but the planned 1995 fund balance of $43,000. That number came from the city finance department. Where there wasn't any chance for misinterpretation? There was none. A city the size of Romulus should have about $1.2 million in its fund balance, according to municipal finance experts not the $43,000 it plans. This isn't opinion, it's accepted practice nationwide according to the Government Finance Officers Association (GFOA).

I recommend that everyone review a copy of this 1993 CAFR, available in the finance department. This document is very well-prepared and truthful. (THAT, and only that, made by GFOA, the presenter of the award, as to the desirability of the content, only the quality of the presentation and truthfulness of the document). The message it states is clear and easy to spot—there is gross mismanagement that is costing us precious tax dollars and causing current future cuts in service.

It's very strange to see members of RECAP cheer the very council members who brought this fiasco about. RECAP seems to care more about winning their millage increase than doing what's right for Romulus. That's sad.

Approving the tax increase will only feed the lawyers more money with no guarantee of success. Approving the tax increase will reward the city for poor planning and make a small, vocal group appear heroes when they are not. Defeating the millage will send a signal to the city and everyone else that the Romulus taxpayers are tired of being taken for granted and pushed around!

WE MUST STRONGLY OPPOSE ANY MILLAGE INCREASE AT THIS TIME.

Senior citizen urges no vote

To the editor:

I am writing to you as a senior citizen and a long-time resident and taxpayer of Romulus.

On June 13, the City of Romulus is going to try and raise our taxes by two and one half million dollars ($2,500,000.00) for a so-called "environmental protection fund."

This new tax is wasteful and unnecessary. We pay taxes to the federal government so the EPA (Environmental Protection Agency) can protect our environment. We pay taxes to the State of Michigan so the DNR (Department of Natural Resources) can protect our environment. Why must we pay three governments to get environmental protection? The City of Romulus isn't responsible for clean-ups—the State of Michigan and the federal government are the ones that are responsible.

On behalf of the other senior citizens and those on fixed incomes in Romulus, I am appealing to you for your help in defeating this new tax increase.

Please vote NO on June 13.

School candidate wins support

To the editor:

It seems that every year voters in the Wayne/Westland School District are faced with an election that is labeled as "crucial" in determining the fate and positive progress of our district. This year is no different. Voters are faced with candidates who have opposite viewpoints on what is best for this district. Both have served as board members and therefore have a track record that shows their concern (or lack thereof) for the students in our district.

The first candidate, Deborah Fowlkes, is a current (appointed) board member. Fowlkes is a candidate who has aligned herself with three other candidates who want to reverse the positive changes made by the current administration. She is part of the "good ole boy network" established by past administrators and departed board members who were more interested in their salaries, perks, and pensions than our children's education. Want proof? One of her first actions as a newly-appointed board member was to take a "junket" to New Orleans, a trip that cost the taxpayers of our district thousands of dollars. She went despite protests from fellow board members (one who decided not to go after a public outcry) and many taxpayers of our district. Fowlkes' decision to waste taxpayers' dollars was a prominent news story on our major local TV stations.

Fowlkes claims that she is not aligned with any board members or other special interest groups. She says she will be independent and a voice for our students, yet she is endorsed by persons/groups who have a vested interest in the outcome of this election, i.e. the district's labor groups. If past history tells us anything, it tells us that when a candidate backed by school labor groups wins, new contracts with big raises and higher taxes follow. I suspect that will be the case if Deborah Fowlkes wins this election.

The other candidate is Sharon Felan. Felan, as a board member, demonstrated independence and genuine concern for our children. She has no hidden agenda(s), is running her own campaign, and owes special interest groups nothing. She will vote to continue the positive changes, i.e., higher MEAP scores, more minority hirings, pay freezes for employee groups, etc., instituted by the current administration.

On Monday, June 13, 1994, I urge all Wayne/Westland residents to vote for Sharon Felan for school board.

City management is questioned

To the editor:

I agree with Mary Collins' letter to the editor in the May 26th edition of The Romulus Roman. Our city employees are to be complimented on the fine job they are doing for this city. As residents we must insist that all city employees are treated fairly and properly rewarded for doing a good job. We cannot afford to single out certain employees, regardless of who they report to, for special treatment. Our Police Department, Fire Department, D.P.W. and all others are to be commended for the fine jobs they are doing for us. They need to know that their perforis enough for anyone, then either challenger would fit in the district belt-tightening plan that probably will include some staff layoffs, curriculum changes and alternative computer software modifications.

Earlier voters gave the district a tremendous technological shot in the arm as it prepares for the 21st century.

To balance that investment, voters should use the remaining days of the campaign to acquaint themselves with the four positions of the candidates and decide whether King and Wilkerson deserve the recommended four-year additional term or whether as the challengers state "it's time for a change."

ROMULUS ENVIRONMENTAL MILLAGE

We find this request ludicrous at best in this time of financial crisis in the city. We cannot recommend anything other than a resounding NO vote for this capricious and foolhardy exercise in emotional blackmail. The vocal proponents of this 1-mill expense have bullied, threatened and cajoled the members of the city council into this preposterous question. We can only hope that voters will see through the emotion to the logic and that the voice of reason will be heard at the ballot box. This is a crucial issue for Romulus at this time. A NO vote is necessary to protect this city from a foolhardy and fiscally irresponsible course of action.

VAN BUREN SCHOOL DISTRICT

We believe incumbents David Peer and Susan Ward-Callahan will best serve the needs of the district in the June 13 Van Buren School District election.

Although their two challengers, Janice Welt and Linda Mandell, are well qualified for the posts, the experience and past performance of both incumbents merit another term in office for each.

Peer has demonstrated his dedication to the district by his long association with parent-teacher organizations and his service on the board during his present term.

With her background in accounting, Ward-Callahan has been a valuable asset to the school board. We believe that her financial experience can help to keep the school district on sound financial footing in the future.

At a critical time for the district when improvement plans are being implemented, sizable growth in the school population is expected and finances are questionable due

At a critical time for the district when improvement plans are being implemented, sizable growth in the school population is expected and finances are questionable due to the state financing reform, we believe it is necessary to retain the incumbents to ensure continuity of the current programs and a continuation in the positive direction of the board.

WAYNE WESTLAND COMMUNITY SCHOOLS

In the heated race for a four-year term on the Wayne-Westland school board, we were unable to choose between the two candidates, Debra Fowlkes and Sharon Felan.

Each has served briefly as an appointee to the board and each has some very strong convictions regarding the schools and the best way to make them better for the students. However, each of them does appear to have a political alliance on the board which could impact on their ability to put the welfare and education of children in the district above all other concerns.

Both Felan and Fowlkes deny the accusation that they are politically aligned with the fractious factions now on the board—but there is too much evidence to the contrary for us to consider either one of them as non-partisan or non-political as they would want to appear.

But, despite that, we have no qualms about the election of either candidate. In the end, when all the positive and negative aspects are weighed, these candidates are just too evenly matched to choose a preferred school board member.

Whomever voters choose, however, will have a Herculean task in attempting to tiptoe through the minefield of politics which presently exists on the school board.

WESTWOOD SCHOOL DISTRICT

In the Westwood School District - one and only one candidate stands out, and she is the incumbent Luisa R. Donfried, who is presently serving as the board treasurer. With a deep concern about the children in the school district and activity promoting programs that will improve the core curriculum, voters should have no difficulty re-electing Donfried to her third consecutive term.

In Inkster, however, it definitely is time for a change. And the Rev. Earl Truss provides an opportunity for the school district to make that change. Truss has been involved in his community and the schools, working aggressively for progressive change. He also could serve as a bridge between the school board and the City Council, rarely has he missed meetings at either elected body. We urge voters to nominate him for the one vacant seat on the board.

DEPRESSION: MORE THAN JUST THE BLUES

by Tae Park, M.D.

All of us experience "the blues" — those somber feelings that usually pass in a short period of time. But some people are affected by clinical depression — a condition far more serious and painful than a normal case of the blues. One in eight individuals may require treatment for depression during their lifetime.

Chemical imbalance

Contrary to popular belief, depression is not brought on simply by emotional causes, personal weakness, or an inability to cope. Rather, like diabetes and thyroid disease, it can be caused by a chemical imbalance. When neurotransmitters — chemicals in the brain responsible for regulating mood — are not balanced, a person can become clinically depressed.

Depression can be disabling

Clinical depression affects the whole body — including physical well-being, moods, and thoughts. It can be as disabling as other illnesses such as arthritis, diabetes, and high blood pressure.

Feelings of overwhelming sadness, loss of interest or pleasure in activities once enjoyed, hopelessness, fatigue, guilt, and lack of self-worth plague individuals who have clinical depression, and greatly decrease their quality of life.

Effective treatments

Fortunately, more than 80 percent of individuals who suffer from depression can be helped with appropriate treatment—including therapy and antidepressant medications. Antidepressants work by restoring the brain's chemical balance.

There are several types of antidepressants available which help balance different neurotransmitters. These medications have proven extremely successful in treating depression, as well as other emotional disturbances. Side effects are minimal and temporary, and no major long-term hazards have been identified.

Medications require careful monitoring

When taking antidepressant medication, it is important to receive follow-up care from your physician, and to stay regularly monitored.

With any antidepressant, take only the prescribed dose and check in with your doctor regularly.

mance is appreciated and will receive proper recognition.

Unfortunately, the city is using up the general fund, our savings account, very quickly. Money is being spent on issues other than basic services and we may not be able to adequately pay our employees.

Most families have some type of budget which includes some kind of savings. The citizens of Romulus know and understand budgeting so why shouldn't the city have a savings account for that "rainy day" in these tough economic times.

So far, the lawsuit against Environmental Disposal Systems has cost us taxpayers $282,738.98, and for what? The powers that be knew this company was coming here for three years and did nothing until just before election time when the city took EDS to court. (Politically motivated?)

Why has all this money of ours been spent, or lost, or both?

Our employees (as taxpayers you and I pay the people who work in our town) are professional and experienced; we must use this knowledge to figure out how to cut costs, upgrade morale and make this city work with the resources we have. We cannot continue to mis-spend our tax dollars and jeopardize the basic services we need and rely on.

VOTES has been formed for "efficient spending." Our question is this, "Is our money efficiently used by our elected officials?"

Local athletes shine in state track finals

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

On a day made for track and field, local high school runners found their place in the sun on Saturday.

At least two - Curtis Lunsford of Belleville and Shawn Arbogast of Westland John Glenn - captured national attention as they were selected to represent Michigan in the "Meet of Champions" to be staged on Saturday between the best of Michigan against the best of Indiana in Indianapolis.

Lunsford, a senior, anchored the Tigers outstanding speed relay teams, while Arbogast had the fourth-best toss in the shot put at the Class A state championships conducted under ideal conditions - the weather was a warm 80 degrees in Midland.

"It was a perfect day for track," said Belleville High coach Dave Medley. "This was the fastest state finals I've ever been a part of. The times were fast. It was incredible."

On that incredible day, Detroit Cass Tech managed to compile a total of 74 points to beat out the best in Michigan for the coveted Class A state crown. Ann Arbor Pioneer was a distant-second (53), followed by Pontiac Northern (35), Detroit Cooley (27), Monroe (24.5) and the University of Detroit High Jesuit (24).

Although Belleville finished overall in 22nd place,

Medley said that he was pleased with his team's effort. "We ran our best times against some of the best teams in Michigan."

Belleville finished fourth in the 400-meter relay as Ian Gold, Nate Lewis, Chris Cannon and Lunsford turned in a 42.40. Highland Park, with a lineup that included Alvilla Greene, Andre Crosby, Terry Reed and Torry Brown ran off with the gold after posting a 40.2.

Belleville also reached the finals of the 800-meter relay event where the same Tiger foursome of Gold, Lewis, Cannon and Lunsford were clocked in the fifth-best time of 1:29.7.

Detroit Cass Tech won the event with Fred Wilkerson, Clarence Williams, Jabari Johnson and Darryl Rankins in a record-setting time of 1:25.0. (The old state mark was 1:26.7 established by Lansing Everett).

Coming off of a victory at the Western Lakes Conference championships, Arbogast managed to post the best performance effort of the year with a toss of 52 feet, 8 inches for a fourth-place. That effort is the third-best overall toss in Glenn's history. (The school record is owned by Wayne Clemons, who had a 55 feet, 5-inch performance in 1973).

Arbogast also finished 10th in the discus, missing qualify-

Wayne is no match for Glenn

By TOM MOORADIAN

Against arch-rival Wayne Memorial, Westland John Glenn left little to chance or for speculation.

With ace Brian Besco on the mound, Glenn blanked Wayne 14-0 in the opening round of the Class A district baseball championships staged at Garden City Municipal Park.

The Rockets supported Besco's four-hit pitching performance with three home runs with Brian's twin, Derek, clubbing one over the left fielder's head to stake the Rockets to a 1-0 lead in the first inning.

Glenn went on to score in every inning, including a six-run outburst in the fourth, to win the first-round test in a game called in the fifth due to the mercy rule.

Besco fanned six but walked five in the four-hit effort.

Wayne coach Jim Chronowski went with Shannon Green, who worked the first four innings before Scott Wetmore replaced him. Wetmore also wasn't around at the finish. He gave way to Jason Overton.

Jeromey Cosby continued his torrid hitting streak as he laced a grand slam homer in the fourth, chasing home Brian Morrison, who had singled. Jerry Farrar, who had walked and Matt Howton before him.

Nick James also put one in HR orbit. The two-run blast came off of Green in the third inning.

Rockets hammer Belleville, 14-1 to capture Class 'A' district title

By TOM MOORADIAN

Strolling off the diamond at Garden City Municipal Field, with beads of sweat rolling off his face, Westland John Glenn coach Norm Hoenes looked over at the press corp and smiled.

"Can you believe what these kids are doing?" Hoenes offered. "I can't. This is incredible."

What Hoenes' Rockets did on Saturday was to pulverize Belleville 14-1, hammering four homers en route to the Class A district championships. Just hours before, Glenn humbled natural rival, Wayne Memorial, 14-0, in the first-round of the playoffs at Garden City.

"In the last six games, we have hit 20 homers," Hoenes said. "I hope we still have some more left for the regionals. We all know it isn't going to get easier from here on."

Glenn will travel to Brighton (See Related story) on Saturday to play for the regional championship and the right to continue on to the state quarterfinals. Joining Glenn and Brighton at the regionals will be Plymouth Salem and Saline.

Glenn exploded for six runs in the bottom of the fifth to put Belleville away. Up to that point, the Westlanders had a 8-0 lead and winning pitcher, Derek Besco, was coasting along on a four-hitter.

Besco, who was relieved in the sixth by Brian Morrison, notched eight strikeouts and walked four for the victory.

Belleville ace, Jeremy Gray, worked his way into the fifth inning before coach John Bertz pulled him for a reliever.

Jeremy Cosby, who replaced Lawrence Scheffer as the all-time Glenn home run hitter, blasted a fifth-inning roundtripper over the left field fence for his 11th HR of the 1994 campaign.

Scheffer, presently an all-conference slugger at the University of Detroit-Mercy, connected for 10 HRs at Glenn in 1992.

"During my first 25 years, the record stood at 4," Hoenes said. "Then Scheffer hit 10, and I said to myself that that is going to stand up for another 25, but then Cosby comes along and the rest is history."

Cosby also contributed four runs batted in. Glenn also got a homer from Jake Henry, who drilled a three-run blast in the second inning. The Rocket senior put his "first-ever" homer over the rightfielder's head.

Derek Besco got into the HR act in the fifth as he crushed one into left field for his third (in four at-bats) hit of the afternoon. Besco also

Romulus is eliminated by Wayne in pre-district, 4-3

By SCOTT HELD
ANP Special Writer

After so many near misses and error-plagued losses this season, you would think the baseball gods would smile on Romulus coach Don Foley and the Eagles as they began the playoffs last week.

Those gods, however, can be fickle. They stayed around for five innings against Wayne in a predistrict baseball playoffs - and that's about all.

The Eagles (8-20 for the complete season) dropped a 4-3 heartbreaking decision to Wayne Memorial and were eliminated from the playoffs. The loss was the third straight to the Zebras this season and followed the pattern of an earlier meeting between the two, when Romulus surrendered four runs in the late innings.

Romulus matched Wayne blow-for-blow in the early going, and went into the fifth with the score knotted at zero. In that inning, Ryan Evans got things started for Romulus when he got aboard and subsequently stole second.

An Eric Lambert double got Evans home to give the Eagles and early 1-0 lead. Gary Harris then reached base on an error and when Jesse Flores walked, the Eagles had the bases loaded.

Two-outs later, Dave Czajkowski's two-run single put the Eagles up 3-0 and two and a half innings away from another day of life in the playoffs. The three-run outburst incidentally knocked Wayne starter, Shannan Green, from the mound.

Things continued to look bright for Foley and company in the sixth when Evans got to second with only one out. But Romulus failed to get him home, and though they had a three-run lead, that stranded run eventually came back to haunt them.

In the bottom of the sixth, starter Flores walked the first two men he faced and followed that up by advancing the pair to second and third with a passed ball. A sacrifice fly got one run across and then the gates burst open for the Zebras.

Flores then balked, which scored another run to make it 3-2. A pair of singles and another walk, followed by a Harris throwing error resulted in two more Wayne runs.

The Zebras retired the side in the top of the seventh to escape with the one-run victory. The victory qualified Wayne to play in the Garden City district tournament. The Zebras drew Westland John Glenn in the first round and fell, 14-0, to their natural foes.

Glenn went on to win the Class A title by beating Belleville, 14-1, in the finals.

Needless to say, the Eagles were disappointed.

"It was just a great disappointment," Foley said afterwards. "And I've never seen these kids as upset as they were after the game."

It was sort of a bittersweet game for Foley, who watched his club effectively face Green, who had been Wayne's ace.

Seniors honored for leadership

Residents Marguerite Michalak and Lafern Porter were recently recognized as the Westland Department of Senior Resources Seniors of the Year and were enshrined in the Friendship Center Hall of Fame.

The two honored recipients were selected based on their outstanding leadership or service that contributed to the betterment of the citizens of Westland, according to Senior Resources Department officials.

Michalak, 83, was a Sunday School teacher for 30 years, a Wayne-Westland school teacher for 20 years, and an Illinois instructor for 10 years.

"Marguerite is a friend and caring person to everyone. We believe her volunteer work, dedicated spirit and continued support to the Center and people warrant her this Hall of Fame Award as Senior of the Year for Service," Senior Resources officials stated.

In her position at Cady School in the Wayne-Westland School District, Michalak counseled safety boys and service girls on leadership and service for 10 years. She operated a school store at Cady and was a director of the learning center. She also tutored children in her home for 5 years.

Michalak was involved in the Foster Grandparents Program as a volunteer and served as chairperson of the Reading Center Program for Wayne-Westland in 1992. She is currently a member of the intergenerational program, which encourages children from Titus Elementary School to become pen pals with seniors from the Friendship Center.

Chosen Teacher of the Year in 1964, Michalak is described as a devoted woman who likes working with children and has committed her life to helping children learn, Senior Resources officials stated.

Michalak has been an active member of the Friendship Center, giving her support to bake and yard sales, serving as a member of the Friendship Kitchen Band, which entertained at churches and nursing homes. She has also been a member of the Hawaiian Dance Exercise class, the Bell Ringing Class and sold the most tickets for the Spring Dance.

Porter, the mother of two and grandmother of five, has been involved in church work most of her adult life, directing choirs and serving as organist for several area churches until poor health made it necessary for her to retire, according to Senior Resources officials.

"Lafern is a very dedicated person and a great leader. She is a very calm person and knows exactly what direction she is going. Her leadership skills, kindness and sincere heart warrant her to have the Senior of the Year Award for Leadership and have her picture placed in the Hall of Fame," Senior Resources officials stated.

Porter presently organizes programs for the Friendship Center's Kitchen Band and is also a member of the Center's Bell Ringing Class.

Porter was selected to represent Detroit area children's choir director at the National Choristers Guild Seminar, and has received awards for children's choir director.

Westland Mayor Robert J. Thomas recently presented Westland Senior Resources Department Director Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek with the Faye Ross Award for outstanding leadership in senior services.

Former Westland store manager receives probation for embezzling

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

A former Westland store manager, who pleaded nolo contendere to the charge of embezzlement over $100, was sentenced to six months probation with the stipulation that he commit no other crime during that period.

Jeffrey Richard Metz, 38, was accused of embezzling more than $50,000 from the Tri-

County Mattress store, located at 38411 Ford Road in Westland, where he was employed. Metz will be considered for review in December 1994, and if record remains clean during his probationary period, the conviction will be set aside, according to Recorder's clerks.

Metz, who told police during his arraignment in Westland 18th District Court that he is working at a mattress store in Racine, Wis., was arrested shortly after a letter written by Tri-County owner Roger Blum in early February was sent to several local and county officials.

Blum, who owns five area stores, was concerned that the embezzlement report he filed with Westland police in mid-September was not being handled in a timely manner.

Metz became employed at the store in October 1992 and was discovered to have embezzled some $50,000 cash and $39,000 in merchandise from the store which he managed over a six-month period, according to Blum's letter.

Blum said he discovered the activity after his six-month company audit revealed the funds were missing.

"We don't make zillions of dollars. We only receive about $40,000 to $50,000 a year in profits (per store). That's two years that he took away from me," Blum said.

Father faces trial in assault of daughters

A 47-year-old Westland man, who turned himself into police claiming he sexually assaulted his two young daughters, according to Westland police Sgt. Michael Terry, was bound over to Detroit Recorder's Court for trial.

"He walked into the police station and said he wanted to clear his guilty conscience," Terry said.

The man posted a $25,000/10 percent conditional bond which restricts him from contact with his two daughters, ages 8 and 10.

The man was charged with six counts of first-degree criminal sexual conduct for having sexual intercourse with the two girls over a four-month period, from November 1992 to February 1993, Terry said. The alleged incidents occurred at the defendant's home on the 3700 block of Cherry Hill Road in Westland.

If convicted, the man, whose name is being withheld in an effort to conceal the identity of the victims, faces a maximum sentence of up to life in prison.

Wayne murder hearing continues

By MARGO DEWEY
Deputy News Editor

A Wayne man charged with second-degree murder is expected to appear for a motion for discussion June 10 before Detroit Wayne County Recorder's Court Judge Geraldine Ford.

Arlie Brandenburg was arrested by Wayne police for allegedly shooting to death 19-year-old Taylor resident Steven James Taylor Jan. 26 of this year.

The incident occurred at the defendant's home on First Street approximately 7:20 p.m., according to Wayne Police Chief John Colligan.

"We received a call at 7:20 p.m. on a dead body found in a basement on the 4000 block of First Street," Colligan said. "Officers responded to the area and found a 19-year-old white male who had one gunshot wound to the chest."

The victim had apparently arrived at the Wayne home as a visitor at approximately 6 p.m. Jan. 26, according to Colligan.

"There were only two people in the home at the time of the incident," Colligan said.

Brandenburg was arraigned Jan. 29 in an out county court. If the defendant is found guilty of second-degree murder, he could receive up to life in prison for the felony offense.

WAYNE RESIDENT TAKES HOME THE GOLD FOR SECOND HYDROPLANE WIN

Mark Tate celebrated his victory with his son Andrew (top left) and wife Sandy (top right). Tate said he has been racing since he was a youngster. He said he enjoys the competition aspect of the race.

He has had the thrill of victory and the agony of defeat, but last Sunday, Wayne resident Mark Tate showed his friends and family members that he still has what it takes to win the gold.

Tate won his second APBA Gold Cup hydroplane race driving the Smokin' Joe powerboat. He plowed through the Detroit River like an eagle looking for its prey.

"It's great to win again," Tate said. "We've always made the finals in the last few years. We wanted to be on the inside during this race, and we had a smooth run all around."

Tate won all four heats last weekend, and he finished with 2,000 points in the standings. The Tide finished second for the fifth consecutive year, and Miss Budweiser came in third.

"I felt pretty good going into the race, but you never want to chirp before it's time to chirp," Tate said.

This year the 1978 John Glenn graduate said his strategy involved running a mistake-free race, and he wanted to show everyone his hand in the Roostertail turns. The Smokin' Joe powerboat also had a lot of power, and Tate knew how to take advantage of it.

"We thought the race would be won in the Roostertail," Tate said. "That's where we thought we had the advantage."

On Saturday, Tate won both heats and had the fastest laps of its heats, 149:631 and 148:284. The majority of the powerboats couldn't keep up with him.

Miss Budweiser would have been Tate's greatest rival during the race, however, driver Chip Hanauer had to drop out Saturday due to acute lower back spasms when the boat's escape hatch on the bottom blew open and water poured inside.

The incident occurred during the warm up time, only two minutes before the start of the first heat. Hanauer was traveling approximately 80 to 90 mph at the time of the accident.

"I felt really bad about what happened to Chip because he's not only a top competitor, but he's also a friend," Tate said. "You don't want to see anyone involved in that type of situation."

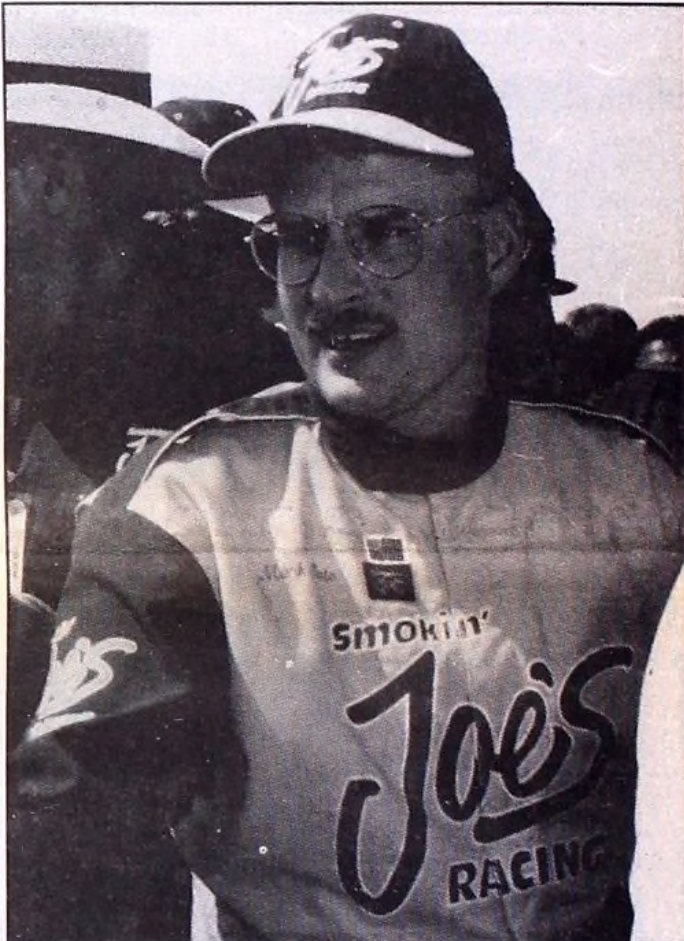

Tate's love for powerboating began when he was only 13 years old. He previously informed the Associated Newspapers that he used to watch boat races, and he knew even as a youngster that he wanted to race professionally one day.

"Most people when they go on vacation go up north or go somewhere to get away, but when my family goes on vacation, we choose to go to a boat race," Tate said. "It's funny, once it gets into your blood, it's hard to stay away."

Tate attributes a majority of his success to having spent most of his life with friends and family members who race. He sees boating as a family activity.

"I really enjoy the thrill of a boating competition and the comradery you have with the team members," Tate said. "Boating is very family oriented. It can be relaxing and challenging. There is always something new to learn.

Smokin'
TATE

"I think like anything else in life, no matter what you do, you have to stay very focused and dedicated. The only way to gain knowledge or to enhance your abilities is to talk to your peer and to surround yourself with good people."

Tate is considered one of the top hydroplane drivers in the world. In 1991 he broke three world records.

While competing in Seattle, the Wayne resident averaged 147.8 mph in the two-mile competitive lap race and averaged 144.7 mph during the 10-mile competitive lap race.

With more than 20 years of racing experience, Tate has never had a serious accident, however, he has seen other drivers who weren't so lucky.

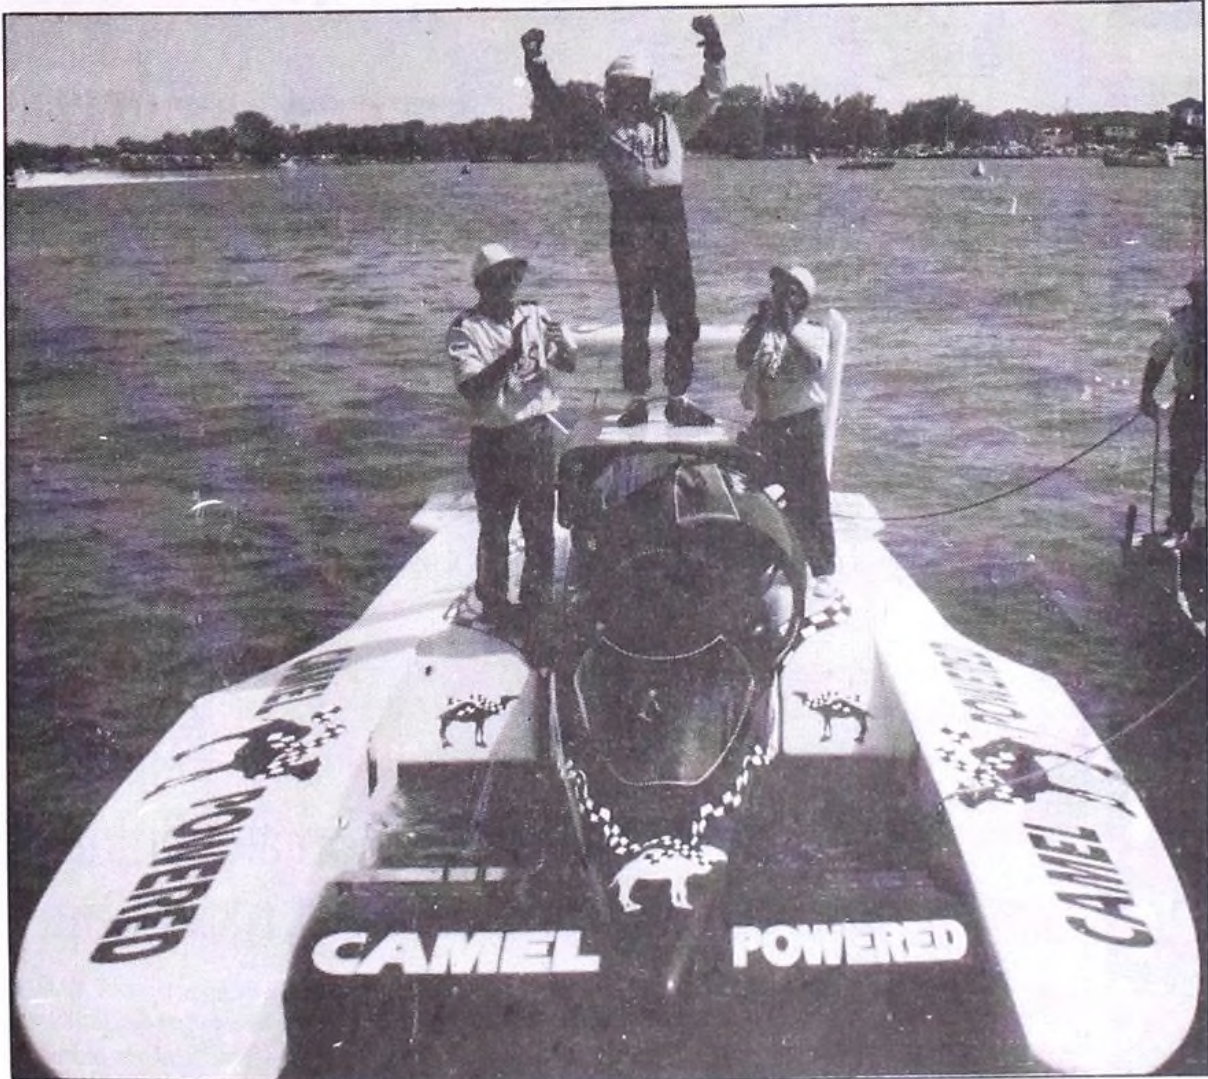

He said he realizes there is no room in the racing world for someone who is unsure of himself.

"It's like a baseball player who gets hit in the head or the leg with a 100 mph pitch," Tate said. "The next inning he has to get back up and hit again. That's just part of the game. You accept it, and you don't worry about it. If you worry, then you're timid. And, if you're timid, you can't perform to the best of your ability."

Tate informed the Associated Newspapers in 1991 that he wanted to stay in the hydroplane racing sport for the next five to seven years.

"I would like to show that I can be consistent with the sport," Tate said. "I need to prove to myself day in and day out that I can win on a consistent basis."

But, from his win last weekend, fans, friends and family members can tell that Tate has already proven he is a winner.

ing for the finals by three inches. His 146 feet, 8 inches toss gave him a 10th place finish at state.

However, the 18-year-old Glenn senior did have the best toss in the discus on Saturday. His longest effort - 165 feet - which would have given him the gold medal was disallowed by the officials who detected a foul on Shawn's third throw.

Wayne Memorial's junior, Ken Riley, sent a message that he will be a power to contend with in the grueling 300-meter hurdles as he came away from the state with the seventh-best performance.

Riley was clocked in 39.2 and, according to Wayne coach

Floyd Carter, the young athlete has the potential to become the next state champ.

"Ken is an all-A student who has tremendous work ethics," said Carter.

Jackson's Brandon Guinn clipped the old state record of 37.76 and won the gold with a 37.5 performance.

Romulus' outstanding sprinter, Phillip Franklin, also left his mark at the state. He finished seventh in the 200-meters (22.5) and crossed the finish line eighth in the 100-meters (10.9).

Glenn finishes 3rd at District championships

Led by gold medal-winning Shawn Arbogast, Westland John Glenn finished third at the 1994 Western Lakes Conference track & field championships staged last week at Farmington High School.

Arbogast was crowned the conference's champ in his specialty, the shot put, after a toss of 49 feet, 11 3/4 inches. His effort was not his best, but it was good enough on an unseasonably cold and rainy afternoon.

Arbogast also came away with a silver medal after losing the gold to Livonia Churchill's Dave Elenich in the discus.

Elenich put the discus in orbit and when it landed it stopped at the 153-foot marker for his first place. The Glenn senior had a toss of 151 feet, 10 inches.

Farmington Harrison won the overall conference title with a 138-point total, while Plymouth Salem was second with 137.5. Westland John Glenn wound up in a two-way tie with Northville for third place. Each team had 103.5 points.

Churchill finished fifth (70), followed by Plymouth-Canton (55), Walled Lake Western and Livonia Stevenson each had 40, while North Farmington (33), Farmington (20), and Walled Lake Central (20), and Livonia Franklin (12.5) rounded out the final standings.

Glenn also had a silver medalist in Todd Peterson, who cleared the 110-meter hurdles in 14.9.

The Rockets produced six bronze-medalist with Jason Baker finishing third in the high jump (6-feet). Brent Washington also crossed the finish line third in the 100-yard dash (11.2) and Shannon Lott was third in the 400-meter dash.

chipped in with three RBIs to help his own cause.

Belleville qualified for the championship round with a 10-4 victory over host, Garden City. Winning pitcher Ralph Truitt struck out eight and walked four in tossing a nine-hitter.

Loser Scott Sumner got in trouble in the sixth when the Tigers batted around and scored six times thanks to four singles, a couple of walks and an error. And it all started with two away.

Brian Dick singled and freshman Josh Flaick advanced him to second on a single to right. Dick scored with Jason Garland's base hit, then Patrick Wilkerson walked, loading the bases.

T.J. Bostic came through with an RBI single and Kevin Clark also walked, forcing in another run. Jason Grandmason also walked and when Dick, up for the second time, drilled one to short, the ball was booted, allowing the final two runs to score.

Truitt helped his cause with a single and triple, while Dick latched on to a three-run homer with Truitt and Gray aboard in the first inning.

Garland also accounted for two hits, including a single and double.

Glenn boasts of 18 class of 94' valedictorians

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

The John Glenn High School class of 94' has something to really be proud of this year.

Eighteen members of their class have been designated as valedictorians. To be deemed a valedictorian, students must have maintained a grade point average of 4.0 or above. These students, along with their classmates, will be honored at the June 11 graduation ceremonies at the Crisler Arena:

Alissa Marie Enriquez is a Wayne resident who plans to pursue an education in medicine or physical therapy at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

Enriquez said she feels she has achieved a lot in the past three years of her high school education and will never forget the people she has shared this time with.

Mark Robert Fixler is a Westland resident who plans to pursue a career in chemical engineering at Michigan Technology University in Houghton.

Fixler said he learned a lot from high school and his parents have inspired him to continue on with his education.

Holly J. Goon is a Westland resident who plans to attend the University of Toledo to pursue an education in premed or biology. She plans to become a pediatrician.

Kevin Michael Olive is a Westland resident who plans to attend the University of Michigan (U of M) in Dearborn. He may pursue a business career, but is still uncertain.

Olive said his high school education has given him a "foundation to build upon."

Sara Michele Knoff is a Westland resident who wants to become a certified public accountant and continue modeling. She plans to continue her education at Henry Ford Community College in Dearborn and transfer to U of M Dearborn.

Knoff said high school helped her choose her career through taking different classes.

Denise Lynn Wilhelmi is a Westland resident who plans to study medicine and pediatrics at Wayne State University (WSU) in Detroit. Her career goal is to become a pediatrician.

She describes her high school experience as an enjoyable one and said her mother is her mentor.

Karen Marie Bloomfield is a Westland resident who plans to pursue a career in genetic engineering after completing her studies at WSU.

She said that although many of her classes prepared her for college, her college preparatory classes "did little to prepare me for future study." She describes her school experience as positive, making good friends and learning a lot to help her in future studies.

Cindy Lynn Koslowski is a

Westland resident who plans to study biology and medicine at WSU to become a doctor.

Koslowski said, for the most part, high school was a positive experience, but the classes really haven't prepared her for college.

"The classes are not necessarily geared for college-bound students the way they are described. Most classes and teachers do not challenge students very much, making it possible to slide through school without working very hard."

Heather Ann Allsteadt is a Westland resident who plans to study mechanical engineering at U of M Dearborn. Her career goal is to work for Ford Motor Company or be involved in automobile racing.

Allsteadt said that although her experience in high school has not been negative, "It could have been better. I don't feel John Glenn has prepared me enough for college. Too many of the supposedly college prep courses are really 'blow off' classes," Allsteadt said.

Ewa Emilia Markowski is a Westland resident who plans to pursue a career in nursing after completing her studies at Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti. She said she may also like to write a book on nutrition.

She describes her high school experience as a pleasant one and said her classes have prepared her for college.

Heather Kathleen Crofts is a

Westland resident who plans to continue her studies in microbiology at Brigham Young University. Her career goal is to attend medical school and possibly become an ophthalmologist.

Crofts said that high school was a challenge and she feels prepared for college. Her mentors are her parents and teachers.

Christina Marie Wrybkowski is a Westland resident who plans to study medicine at U of M in Ann Arbor. She said she will choose her career based on what makes her happy.

Wrybkowski said high school has definitely prepared her for college and being involved in extracurricular activities made a "huge impact" on her life.

Anthony Louis Jiovani is a Canton resident who plans to study astronautical engineering at the United States Air Force Academy. His career goal is to become a career military officer.

Jiovani said high school has kept him busy and prepared him for higher education. His mentor is his grandfather.

Barbara Lynn Kellner is a Westland resident who plans to study veterinarian medicine at Michigan State University (MSU) in Lansing.

She feels her high school education has taught her time management and said she enjoyed the extracurricular activities.

Michael David Downey is a Wayne resident who plans to study mathematics and pharmacy at U of M Dearborn. He would like to work in pharmaceuticals.

Downey said high school has prepared him for college and the majority of his teachers and classmates have made high school a positive experience.

Kelly Lynn Hamrick is a Westland resident who plans to continue her studies at MSU. Hamrick is considering hotel and restaurant management as a career, but is still undecided.

"Every activity that I participated in and every class that I took helped shape the well-rounded person that I am today. I think all of my experiences will be very beneficial to me in college," Hamrick said.

Andrew James Raisanen is a Westland resident who plans to study mathematics at U of M Dearborn. Raisanen's career goal is to become a mathematics teacher.

He feels high school has prepared him for college.

Sean Edward McConnell is a Wayne resident who plans to study engineering at U of M Dearborn. McConnell's chosen career field is space engineering.

He said high school has prepared him for college and his parents and John Glenn History teacher Mr. Richard Gordon.

Student responses were taken from questionnaires distributed to the valedictorians.

At graduation ceremonies, 1977 graduate Timothy McBride will be honored with the Distinguished Alumni Award. McBride was the president of his class and received his Bachelor of Business Administration degree from Eastern Michigan University in 1982.

If you're in the market for a new home or to refinance your mortgage, you're probably looking at both fixed and adjustable rate mortgage loans.

First of America Bank has something that combines the best of both—our Adjustable Rate Mortgages. You'll benefit from a five-year period with a low, fixed initial rate. Which means you can get more house for your money.

After the initial five-year period, your interest rate will adjust annually based on the U.S. Treasury Securities rate in effect at that time. If rates increase, your interest rate is protected and cannot rise more than five percent. So whether you plan to move to another home within five years or stay for a while, our Adjustable Rate Mortgage Loan should be your first step.

And use our pre-approved loan option to find out how much of a mortgage you qualify for prior to writing an offer to purchase.

For more information, talk to your Realtor. Or call any of the First of America Homelight mortgage loan centers listed below, and find out about our wide array of mortgage products.

Buick sedan abandons road monster reputation

Buick Roadmaster has jokingly been referred to as the "Roadmonster" a tribute to the abundant size of the vehicle. Roadmaster also was noted for sluggish handling and reputation as grandpa's applewagon.

Not any more.

Sporting a muscular 5.7 LT1 V-8, plus showing off a resculpted figure, Roadmaster/94 increasingly appeals to younger owners interested in sedan-sized passenger safety, Buick comfort, traditional reliability and plenty of passing juice.

Roadmasters LT1 replaces the standard 5.7 V-8 with lighter pistons and roller cams, plus cast iron heads (increased engine life) and sequential fuel port injection. The result is surprising acceleration akin to a police cruiser, plus amazing fuel economy (EPA says 25 highway, but we got a few more) under the command of some 260 horses. Hey, Camaro boasts 275 horsepower and you can't crowd the family into the back-seat of that sleek arrowhead.

Real-wheel drive torque is good too at 336 lb.-ft. for added hauling options, even at sharp water ramp levels. In perspective, last year's Roadmaster featured 180 ponies and 300 lb.-ft. of torque. Good but not good enough.

Roadmaster inside continues providing ample comfort and smooth ride room for large gatherings, ranging from added door padding, thick leather (optional) seating, to dual climate control and rear seat vent and heating options.

Standard ABS and improved suspension, including added stabilizer and strut mounts, ensure better concerning and handling. Plus standard variable-speed steering allows for parking ease in the full-sized Roadmaster.

Not a bad package for growing families or those who are done growing.

Police probe city manager's suicide notes

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

"It must be my time to die!"

This handwritten comment in a note from distraught Belleville City Manager Jeffrey Przygocki has raised more questions than it has answered for Belleville residents.

City residents said they saw the 31-year-old city manager walking up and down the Main Street of Belleville with a legal pad writing what later turned out to be notes to family members and city officials only hours before he reportedly shot and killed himself in a wooded area last Monday night.

The note listed above was addressed to the owner of a local business, along with four others, reportedly was found on Mr. Przygocki's body by Michigan State Police, who are investigating the alleged suicide.

The other letters went to Mayor Glenn Silvenis, City Attorney John Day and two family members.

Mr. Przygocki's letter to the mayor reportedly thanked him for his trust. "I think I lived up to it. But I just can't take this type of abuse. I'm sorry if I let you down," the city manager wrote.

Mr. Przygocki's note to the business owner also stated firmly "I didn't do anything wrong. It was all supposed to be a joke. Chris (a temporary city clerk) helped plan and execute it."

Mr. Przygocki's body was found by Belleville police, at the same time City Council members were listening to sexual harassment allegations being made against the city manager.

The harassment issue stemmed from a "practical joke" Mr. Przygocki reportedly had prepared on June 2 with the help of a temporary secretary. The secretary, according to Silvenis, "volunteered to pose as a 'mummy' so that Jeff could take a photograph and use it to suggest to the other city employees to clean up the mess" in the City Hall storage area.

The prank was a word play on a parent's plea "Mommy (Mummy) wants you to clean your room."

To take on the appearance of a mummy, witnesses said, the temporary employee was wrapped in toilet paper from head to foot. She reportedly was fully clothed at the time.

"This turned out to be a prime example of an idea that sounded good at the time, but was regretted in hindsight," Silvenis said.

At a City Hall press conference Tuesday, Silvenis said, "Monday morning a person unknown but reported to (have been) working for the city began a campaign of contacting all of the area news agencies."

The mayor said, "A group of city employees was orchestrated to attend the regular City Council meeting and make charges or confront Jeff in front of TV cameras.

"Throughout Monday, the media pressure continued to build. Jeff became more concerned about how the nature of the charges that were rumored would affect his family and career," Silvenis said.

Valiant fight Hospice assists cancer patient

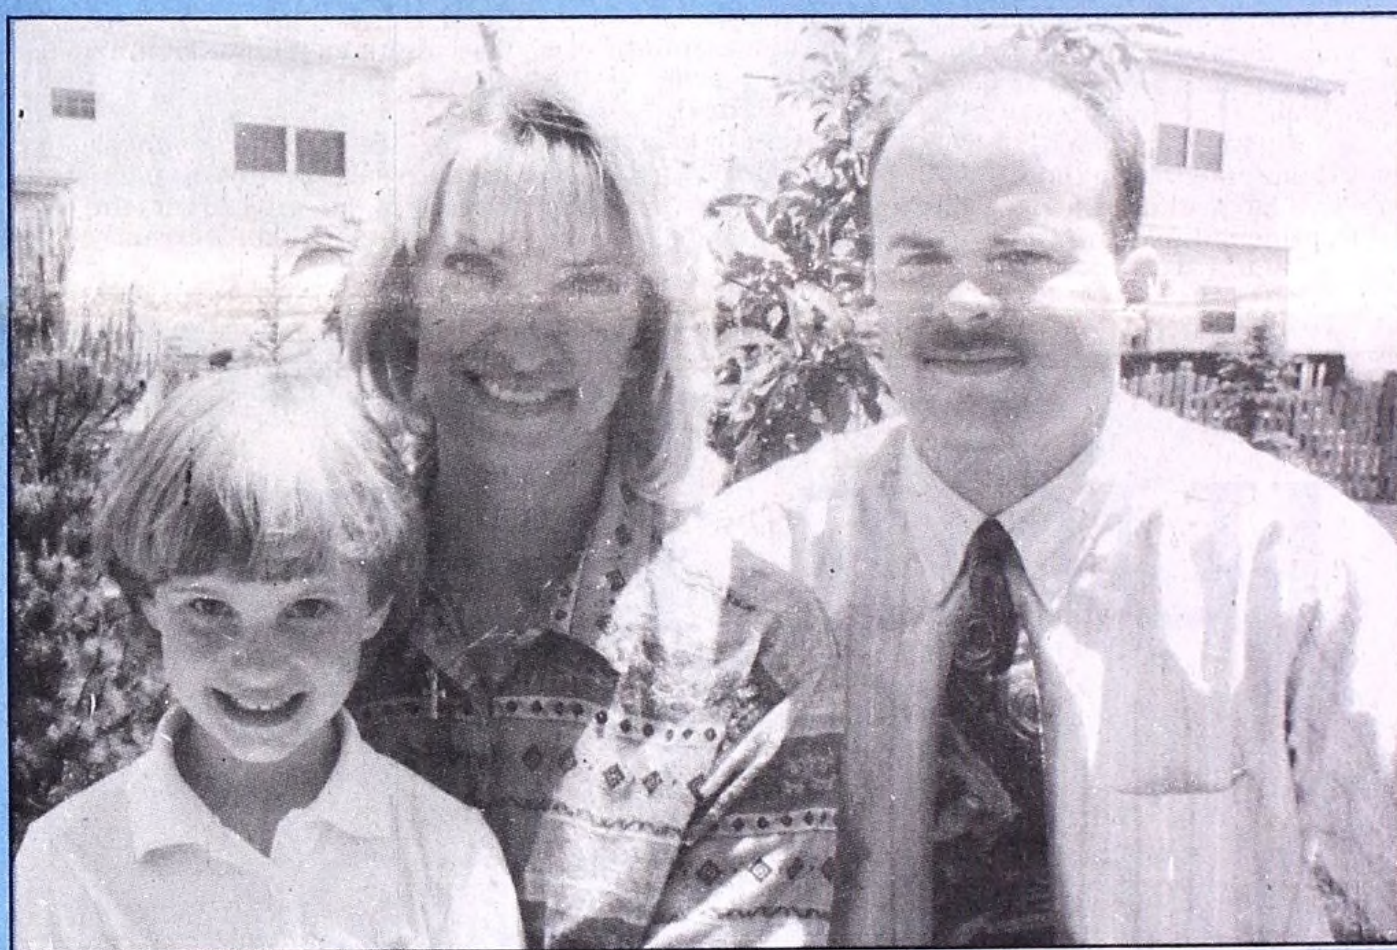

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

Connie McLain's valiant fight for her life is coming to an end—and after years of surgery and chemotherapy, McLain has chosen to end the battle against her terminal illness on her own terms at home with her family.

McLain suffers from a rare type of malignant tumor which is considered a form of lung cancer. It developed in September 1991 as a small growth in her leg and later spread to her lungs. According to her husband, Mike McLain, less than 100 of these cases have been diagnosed in the United States.

Throughout that time, McLain was seeking the help of physicians to aggressively treat this disease, until her last stay in the hospital in February 1993 when doctors said her illness was terminal.

"As soon as they told me a cure wasn't realistic, I contacted Hospice (of Southeastern Michigan). I was very grateful for the help. See CURE page A-2

Westland residents receive prison sentence for robbery

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

The two remaining defendants in the August 1993 murders of two Westland residents and two Gladwin County residents have been sentenced to serve not less than six years in prison nor more than 17 years.

Paul Delbert Treece, 18, and Tammy LaCross, the 16-year-old daughter of one of the victims, plea bargained to the lesser charges of armed robbery and felony firearms. Both were originally charged with four counts of open murder, armed robbery, felony firearms and arson. LaCross, who was sentenced as an adult, and Treece received a mandatory two years in prison on the firearms charges and four to 15 years in prison for the robbery charges.

Their partners in crime, Charles Loran Treece, 20, and Michael David Elliott, 20, were found guilty of four counts of first-degree premeditated felony murder, armed robbery, breaking and entering with intent to commit larceny, arson and felony firearms after jury trials in Gladwin County Circuit Court. The two defendants were sentenced on each of the separate counts with a total prison term of five life sentences plus additional years in prison.

All four were convicted in connection with the deaths of Westland residents Kathy Rose-Lane, 38, Bruce Tufnell, 33, and Gladwin County residents Vicky Sue Currie, 39, the mother of LaCross who lived with Tufnell's cousin Mike Tufnell, 39, in the Bentley Township home where the victims' bodies were found shot and burned.

Mr. Tufnell and Mrs. Lane arrived at Mike Tufnell's home during the evening hours of Aug. 6, 1993 en route to a family reunion in Harrison, Mich., according to Carol Gillentine, a Westland neighbor and friend of the deceased.

The fire was discovered by police at 7:11 a.m. the next morning, but due to the severity of the blaze, officials could not enter the home until late that evening, Gladwin County Sheriff Michael Hargrave said.

The four victims were found shot and burned to death in what police believed to be a drug-related shooting, Hargrave said.

Area house fire ignites in-depth police investigation

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Inkster police and fire officials are investigating an early-morning fire that caused heavy smoke and structural damage Thursday to a house located in the 27000 block of Florence.

The homeowner, Earl Bealum, was the only occupant of the home when the fire broke out shortly before 4 a.m. He escaped without injury.

Police have questioned a 30-year-old Inkster man, arrested behind an Inkster party store, about the fire. The man had phoned 9-1-1, they said, and informed the operator that there was a fire in progress on Florence.

However, police found coin boxes, allegedly stolen from a nearby car wash, in the person's car. He also admitted to police that he had stolen a license plate from a van in Romulus and had attached it to his vehicle.

Police would not say whether the man, who resides on Irene Street in Inkster, was a suspect in the arson fire. He was turned over to Romulus police for questioning in the larceny of the license plate.

According to Inkster police, investigators found a cloth-like material doused in a flammable liquid near the front window to the house. The front and side doors also had flammables blocking the exits to the house.

Bealum told police that he had been receiving threatening phone calls for about two weeks. He said the calls apparently were precipitated by an incident which involved the sale of some tools.

Bealum explained that a friend had been visiting him when a subject offered to sell him a "hammer chisel" type tool. When Bealum rejected the offer, the subject then successfully negotiated the sale to the friend for $100. The friend left the tool in Bealum's care.

A few days later, a woman called saying that she was the friend's sister and that her brother "needed the money to get out of jail." Bealum told police that he didn't hear from the sister until May 5 when two women and a male came to the house and demanded the $100.

Bealum said that he gave the trio the $100, but they wanted an additional $500 to post bond for the brother. When Bealum refused to give them the money, the three left the house.

Shortly after the incident, Bealum said, he and his wife began receiving threatening phone calls.

The mayor also said since Mr. Przygocki had taken over as city manager, numerous budget cuts, layoffs and shifts of job responsibility took place and "some employees were not happy with the changes." Part of the investigation was concentrated on determining if those factors had anything to do with the city manager's suicide, the mayor said. "Jeff felt that in cases like this, the allegations and rumors could never be pushed aside by the truth," the mayor continued. "Mr. Przygocki's sense of humor was exceeded only by his integrity."

"Some said the other notes stated, 'Jeff felt his career was over.'"

"His brother, Mark, who works for the Taylor School District, said he just returned home Monday, when he received a phone call from a media representative asking, "What can you tell me about your brother's death?"

He said he knew nothing of his brother's death at the time. "I felt it would have been a lot more dignified, if I had gotten the initial news from a family member."

In his statement to the press, Mark Przygocki said, "Those who knew and loved Jeff hope that he has found the peace of mind that has eluded him in the past few days." He also asked the press to "respect our family's privacy as we struggle to heal."

Przygocki said that the stress of the phone campaign may have had some impact on his brother's death. "That (the phone campaign) might have put the bullets in the gun, but unfortunately, it was my brother who pulled the trigger."

"Silvenis said the city hoped that some press representatives would be able to help them identify the caller or callers who contacted the media last week."

Mr. Przygocki is survived by his wife, Caroline G. (Hogue) Przygocki; a son, Adam J.; his parents, Walter J. and Delphine H. (Kasnicki) Przygocki of Taylor; and three brothers, Mark of Taylor, Brian of Canton Township and David of Oklahoma.

In addition to being Belleville City Manager, he also served as president of the Belleville Area Central Business Community and was a member of the Belleville Rotary Club.

His funeral was conducted at the First United Methodist Church of Belleville. The Rev. R. LaVere Webster, pastor of the church, and The Rev. William Fisher of St. Joseph Catholic Church in Monroe officiated. Interment was in Mt. Carmel Cemetery of Wyandotte. Arrangements were completed by the David C. Brown Funeral Home.

The family recommends that memorial contributions be sent to the Adam Przygocki Scholarship Fund.

About 11:30 p.m. Wednesday, Beanum said he heard someone at the back door and went to investigate. He did not see or find anything. Then, around 3:25 a.m. Thursday, he said he smelled smoke and thought he may have left something on the stove. He got up and spotted the fire and ran out of the house.

In the meantime, police responding to the scene saw a subject behind the party store in the 3700 block of Inkster Road who admitted that he was driving on Florence and saw the fire and phoned 9-1-1. Police found coin boxes in the subject's vehicle and, after he admitted stealing a license plate from a Romulus van, he was turned over to Romulus police for questioning.

The arson and case remain under investigation, police said.

Anyone with any information about the fire is urged to contact Detective Darryl Tubbs, Inkster Police Department (563-9856).

Michigan). You need support right away. It's best to get to know your social worker and nurse before you become really ill," McLain said.

Hospice services provides terminally ill patients with either home, hospital or nursing home care which focuses on patient comfort and emotional support of patient and family, rather than sometimes painful aggressive medical treatments used to prolong life. However, some treatments are allowed if agreed upon by the patient, clinician and caregivers.

"Hospice is for people with limited life expectancy. Some outlive their life expectancy because they feel better. They're getting what they need to be comfortable and they want to live. They're not receiving treatment that hurts their body," McLain's nurse Jilda Macuga said.

"Working at a hospital, I see resistance from some of the physicians to enroll in hospice. They want to keep treating the patients," Mike McLain said.

Doctors could not provide McLain with a life expectancy and, Macuga said, some patients have remained on the hospice program up to 5 years.

McLain, whose husband works at a local hospital, decided she'd rather spend the remainder of her time enjoying life to the fullest. Today McLain works full-time as a legal assistant at Brooks and Cushman Law Firm in Southfield. Her employers, she said, are very understanding of her illness.

Hospice provides counseling services for family members before and after the death of a patient. Currently, the couple's daughter is going through grief support classes.

Fellow Romulus Taxpayers:

I am writing to you as a senior citizen who has lived, paid taxes and been a voter in Romulus for 46 years.

On June 13th, the City of Romulus is going to try and raise our taxes by two and one half million dollars ($2,500,000.00) for a so-called "environmental protection fund".

Over the last year, we've seen our federal income taxes go up, the sales tax go up, higher state fees for services, assessments jumping up our property tax bills, and now another proposal from the politicians to get even more money from us taxpayers.

This new tax is wasteful and unnecessary. We pay federal income taxes so the EPA can protect our environment. We pay state income taxes so the DNR can protect our environment. Why must we pay three governments to get environmental protection? The City of Romulus isn't responsible for clean-ups - the State of Michigan and the Federal Government are the ones that are responsible.

We have a lot of pressing needs in Romulus. We need to improve our senior citizen centers. Our roads need to be improved. We need more recreational activities for our teenagers. We are short of funds to take care of very basic city services. And now we're told that instead of attending to that business, we need more taxes for new projects.

I'm asking you, on behalf of the other senior citizens and those on fixed incomes in Romulus, please help us defeat this new tax increase. We just can't afford to pay more taxes.

Please VOTE NO on June 13th.

Thank you.
Sincerely,

George Witzgall

FISHING LURES ANGLERS OF ALL AGES

It's summertime for sure and fishing enthusiasts of all ages are heading to the lakes and rivers for a try at landing that elusive fish using whatever lures and bait may be available. For some young fishermen, however, the fun is in the effort, and success is merely a good time at the park. Last Saturday, youngsters headed to Sherwood Park in Sumpter Township to learn fishing skills from members of the Huron Valley Conservation Association (HVCA) at a free fishing clinic. At left, Justin Riley gets a bit of help with his baited hook from Pauline Hargis of Belleville. In the center photo, Daryl Pullen demonstrates the concentration necessary in a true angler, while at far left, Jason McClain shows off his first catch of the day.

Voters to select new board members

Next Monday, voters in this area will be asked to decide some crucial issues.

And, while at first glance, the selection of school board members and the question of a 1-mill increase for environmental protection may not seem of serious importance to the well-being of our community—these choices are, in fact, very significant at this time.

We urge voters to find the time and the energy to get to the polls and vote—no matter how inconvenient it may be to their lives. The failure to exercise this right may impact far more negatively on our community and our lives as a whole than could be imagined.

Every vote counts and every choice is important. We urge voters to make the decision of the majority known so that conflicts can be resolved and decisions made in the best interest of all.

Should only a few go to the polls, and the decisions in these matters be made by only a small number of residents who may not have the concern of the whole community in mind, the seeds of disaster could be planted in our schools and in our community.

Please vote. Every vote is crucial to our community. And, while the majority may not agree with our choices, which we have outlined below, we will respect the choices made at the polls and move forward in a spirit of cooperation and good will with the newly-elected school board members. We wish all the candidates well and we commend each and every one of them for taking on the rigors and labor of a campaign.

POLLS WILL BE OPEN FROM 7 A.M. UNTIL 8 P.M. MONDAY, JUNE 13.

Our choices are:
PLYMOUTH-CANTON COMMUNITY SCHOOLS

For the one-year term on the Plymouth Canton Community Schools Board of Education, we would recommend Susan D. Feiten.

Feiten has attended every board of education meeting this year, even before she was elected to fill the vacancy created by Dean Swartzwelter. She has showed her interest in securing the best education possible for the students in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools through organizations like Class-size Action Partnership, which she co-chaired.

She appears interested the community concerns and presents them to the board with conviction even if they do not necessarily affect her or her children. She does not have an agenda, except to protect the education of children in the district.

For the four-year term we recommend Peggy Kalis and Mark Horvath.

Both these individuals have spent many Monday nights in the board of education building staying abreast of the most topical issues surrounding the school district and their children. They have asked questions of and offered input to current board members regarding controversial topics, but not without first doing their own homework. Their sincere belief in the school system and employees will motivate them to work for district improvements and the betterment of the entire community.

ROMULUS COMMUNITY SCHOOLS

The Romulus school trustee contest next Monday offers the classic confrontation between two long-term school board members, Mary King and Ed Wilkerson, against two friendly but determined school activists, Judie Gondek and Julie Oleszkowicz.

The contest has been extremely quiet with no official candidates' nights scheduled, no press releases from either side and no outlandish cries of revolt from the challengers.

Actually, the biggest noise in the campaign was directed at Lansing with the enactment of massive millage cuts through Proposal A that left many school districts (particularly former out-of-formula districts such as Romulus) in tough financial straits.

Wilkerson, one of the more outspoken and independent trustees, and King, an award-winning school board member, deserve new terms.

But, if Romulus voters decide that 12 years on the board is enough for anyone, then either challenger would fit in the district belt-tightening plan that probably will include some staff layoffs, curriculum changes and alternative computer software modifications.

Earlier voters gave the district a tremendous technological shot in the arm as it prepares for the 21st century.

To balance that investment, voters should use the remaining days of the campaign to acquaint themselves with the four positions of the candidates and decide whether King and Wilkerson deserve the recommended four-year additional term or whether as the challengers state "it's time for a change."

We find this request ludicrous at best in this time of financial crisis in the city. We cannot recommend anything other than a resounding NO vote for this capricious and foolhardy exercise in emotional blackmail. The vocal proponents of this 1-mill expense have bullied, threatened and cajoled the members of the city council into this preposterous question. We can only hope that voters will see through the emotion to the logic and that the voice of reason will be heard at the ballot box. This is a crucial issue for Romulus at this time. A NO vote is necessary to protect this city from a foolhardy and fiscally irresponsible course of action.

VAN BUREN SCHOOL DISTRICT

We believe incumbents David Peer and Susan Ward-Callahan will best serve the needs of the district in the June 13 Van Buren School District election.

Although their two challengers, Janice Welt and Linda Mandell, are well qualified for the posts, the experience and past performance of both incumbents merit another term in office for each.

Peer has demonstrated his dedication to the district by his long association with parent-teacher organizations and his service on the board during his present term.

With her background in accounting, Ward-Callahan has been a valuable asset to the school board. We believe that her financial experience can help to keep the school district on sound financial footing in the future.

At a critical time for the district when improvement plans are being implemented, sizable growth in the school population is expected and finances are questionable due to the state financing reform, we believe it is necessary to retain the incumbents to ensure continuity of the current programs and a continuation in the positive direction of the board.

WAYNE-WESTLAND COMMUNITY SCHOOLS

In the heated race for a four-year term on the Wayne-Westland school board, we were unable to choose between the two candidates, Debra Fowlkes and Sharon Felan.

Each has served briefly as an appointee to the board and each has some very strong convictions regarding the schools and the best way to make them better for the students. However, each of them does appear to have a political alliance on the board which could impact on their ability to put the welfare and education of children in the district above all other concerns.

Both Felan and Fowlkes deny the accusation that they are politically aligned with the fractions factions now on the board—but there is too much evidence to the contrary for us to consider either one of them as non-partisan or non-political as they would want to appear.

But, despite that, we have no qualms about the election of either candidate. In the end, when all the positive and negative aspects are weighed, these candidates are just too evenly matched to choose a preferred school board member.

Whomever voters choose, however, will have a Herculean task in attempting to tiptoe through the minefield of politics which presently exists on the school board.

WESTWOOD SCHOOL DISTRICT

In the Westwood School District - one and only one candidate stands out, and she is the incumbent Luisa R. Donfried, who is presently serving as the board treasurer. With a deep concern about the children in the school district and activity promoting programs that will improve the core curriculum, voters should have no difficulty reelecting Donfried to her third consecutive term.

In Inkster, however, it definitely is time for a change. And the Rev. Earl Truss provides an opportunity for the school district to make that change. Truss has been involved in his community and the schools, working aggressively for progressive change. He also could serve as a bridge between the school board and the City Council, rarely has he missed meetings at either elected body. We urge voters to nominate him for the one vacant seat on the board.

New hit Shakespearean comedy relays true life experience of former military teacher

It's a story about the unexpected. Young men sign up for the Army hoping to serve their country, but they end up learning Shakespeare from an out of work Detroit advertising executive.

This comic tale describes the new movie Renaissance Man which is written by Detroit native Jim Burnstein. Directed by Penny Marshall, the film stars Danny DeVito, Gregory Hines, Lillo Brancato and Marky Mark.

Renaissance Man is based on the true life story of Burnstein who graduated from the University of Michigan with a bachelor of arts and a master's degree in English literature. He said he had two goals at the time—to teach Shakespeare and to write his own dramatic material.

"The idea for the movie came from my experience teaching soldiers at the Selfridge Air National Guard Base here in Michigan," Burnstein said. "When I went to the University of Michigan, I had one of those courses that changes your life. It was a freshman comp course. It was taught by the chairman of the department, but we didn't know that at the time.

"He was running this experimental program and informed us that instead of writing what we did on our summer vacation, we were going to write about Shakespeare."

In his senior year, Burnstein decided to concentrate the majority of his studies on Shakespearean plays and literature.

"I loved it, but I was committed at the time to going to law school," Burnstein said. "So, I went to law school. But, on the way to the University of Wisconsin with my wife in the car I asked myself, 'What am I doing this for when I want to teach Shakespeare.'"

"I went one semester, and then decided to get my master's degree in English literature."

Burnstein said his goal was to teach Shakespeare but not to the average middle class person who has high expectations of obtaining an education.

"I wanted to teach it to people who never expected to be reading it," Burnstein said. "I tried to volunteer when I got of graduate school to teach Shakespeare. I think I went to the Birmingham Community Center and asked if I could teach Shakespeare to senior citizens. They said, 'Well that sounds great, but could you teach macrame instead?'"

Burnstein said just when he thought all the odds were against him finding a Shakespearean teaching job, his lucked changed in 1976. A friend called him and asked if he would be interested in teaching Shakespeare at the Selfridge Air National Guard Base.

"I called the guy in charge up there, and he said these are soldiers who are getting their college degree at night, and I said 'This is the exact audience I was looking for,' so I accepted the job," Burnstein said. "The military was the furthest thing from a regular classroom, but it was the ideal challenge for me."

When he first arrived on the base, Burnstein said he couldn't find his assigned post which is also revealed in the movie.

"There were young to old soldiers waiting for me in this hot, non-air conditioned room," Burnstein said. "I told them we were going to read Shakespeare. They looked at me and said 'Is it all going to be translated.'"

In the late 1970s, Burnstein intensified his writing career by working on scripts for television.

"Right away I had success out there," Burnstein said. "I had a television movie picked up by CBS and Timothy Hutton was going to star in. About three weeks from shooting, however, they hadn't signed Timothy Hutton yet. It didn't get made. So, I disappeared."

Burnstein said a friend of his, Kurt Luedtke, who had left journalism to go into television had just made "a little picture" called Absence of Malice, and suggested Burnstein write a script about his experience teaching soldiers.

"He said, 'As long as you're going to suffer in this business, suffer at a higher rate,'" Burnstein said. "I was so mad at television that I would do anything to get out of television. So, I went back to theater where I was originally trained."

"Kurt said, 'If you come up with a story, I will option it in advance so you will have some money to write it.' He taught me how to write a feature as opposed to a television movie. They are different animals."

Man faces reckless driving charge in injury accident

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

A 58-year-old Inkster man who witnesses said deliberately drove his vehicle into children playing on a sidewalk was bound over for trial Wednesday on charges of reckless driving and leaving the scene of an injury accident.

Judge Richard Hammer, who heard the case against Alvin Little, modified the original charge against the defendant after hearing testimony from the six victims who testified during the two-hour examination conducted in 22nd District Court.

Hammer said that the Wayne County assistant prosecutor failed to show there was deliberate intent by the defendant to run down the children and that the original charge of felonious assault would be reduced to reckless driving.

Little was bound over to Recorder's Court for trial after the hearing, and his arraignment in the higher court was scheduled for 9 a.m. June 22. The defendant was released on a $35,000 personal bond.

During court testimony, witnesses told the court that Little drove his vehicle on to the curb and directly at the children, who were standing on the sidewalk and the front yard at the southwest corner of Hazelwood and Western Street.

The incident occurred around 6:30 p.m. on May 17.

Greg Edison, 18, one of the victims who suffered an injury to his left knee when he leaped from the path of the vehicle, related that after the driver plowed into the victim, "He (the driver) looked back and laughed and kept going."

Five others: David Tabb, 14; Almonzo Brown, 11; Chester Strayhorn 14; Clarence Scott, 14 and Leonard Wyne, 14, also were injured during the incident. Tabb was rushed to Annapolis Hospital in Wayne where he was treated and released for bruises and lacerations, while Strayhorn sustained a left hip injury and was treated in Garden City Hospital.

Little was arrested shortly afterward when a witness who had observed the chain of events leading to the mayhem from his porch, jumped into his car and followed the defendant's vehicle. The witness managed to get the defendant's license number and give it to the police.

Leaving the scene of a personal injury accident is a felony that is punishable by five years in prison.

Arnold Reid, Little's attorney, said that he was pleased that he was able to get the original charges against his client dismissed.

"Obviously we are pleased that the court dismissed the charges," Reid said. "There was no evidence presented to show any deliberate intent to run those kids down by whoever drove that car. And, according to what the witnesses said in court, they didn't know Mr. Little before this incident occurred."

"When I asked them (witnesses) if they knew Mr. Little, (before the accident) each replied 'No.'"

However, according to a Hazelwood Street resident, the defendant apparently has had problems with youth in the neighborhood. The resident said that someone had recently vandalized the defendant's car, and he was angry over the incident.

Speaking on a condition of anonymity, the resident said that "Mr. Little may have thought those kids did the vandalism. That doesn't justify running anyone down. But I can see why someone could be very angry over it."

According to a court official, the six teen witnesses also had to be verbally reprimanded for their actions inside the 22nd District Court on Wednesday. They apparently tampered with some papers inside a room they were waiting in, and at least one of the witnesses may have tampered with a vehicle parked in the court lot, a source said on Thursday.

Driver walks from tree crash

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

Rush hour traffic was delayed Tuesday afternoon as Westland police and fire officials responded to an accident which left a 1988 Dodge in the center of a large tree located in front of a home on 37263 Norene Street in Westland, according to Westland police officer Steve Frazier.

The accident occurred when an 18-year-old Wayne driver, traveling north on Newburgh Road, attempted to pass the car in front of him on the right shoulder, Frazier said.

"The driver hit a small drainage ditch and lost control of his vehicle driving into the tree," Frazier said.

There were no passengers in the car, no alcohol was involved and no one was injured in the crash, according to the officer. The driver suffered only minor injuries and was issued a ticket for careless driving.

"The driver walked away from it -- he was wearing a seatbelt," Frazier said.

After four drafts, Burnstein said he completed his final script. His big break came in 1987.

"I had an agent in Los Angeles from the television days who I thought was good, but when he left, he put my new screenplay Renaissance Man on the desk of Stu Robinson who is a very significant writer's agent," Burnstein said. "Stu doesn't know why this was put on his desk, but he calls me up and says 'I don't know who you are or where you are, but from now on I represent you.'"

As a result of writing Renaissance Man, Burnstein's reputation as a writer began to grow in Hollywood.

"Michael Douglas hired me to write a screenplay for him, an adaptation of a book, so that got me into the Writer's Guild," Burnstein said. "As I was finishing up this Michael Douglas project, Stu called me up and said this producer, Sara Colleton, who has read Renaissance Man wants to meet you. He said 'I never tell you to get on a plane tomorrow, but for this lady, get on a plane.'"

Colleton is an independent producer at 20th Century Fox. It was due to meeting her that Burnstein was able to have his first screenplay become a motion picture movie.

"After meeting her and going over various changes, by the time I went back to Michigan the next day, she called me and said she had set up a deal for me at Fox," Burnstein said. "So I went back to meet Sara again, and she said 'Jim you've written a lovely little screenplay here, and now we're going to make this a great big movie. That means we're going to start over from page one.'"

After approximately six revisions, the duo had produced the finished product.

"We sent it to Fox, and they did nothing," Burnstein said. "Or, they didn't like it enough to make it. But, I knew at that point we weren't done."

Colleton left Fox, according to Burnstein, and attracted the to Burnstein, and attracted the attention of Touchstone Pictures.

"So, we fly out to meet with the Touchstone people, and they want a rewrite," Burnstein said. "This is 1992. After the rewrite, they like it. Now they say we have to find a director. Sara said, 'Fine. Let me find the person.' They told us we have five shots. First one on the list is Penny Marshall.

"I figure yeah, no way. This was the weekend that League Of Their Own came out."

Marshall read the screenplay and like it right off the bat, according to Burnstein.

"Now comes one more rewrite, and now we're talking delicate surgery," Burnstein said. "You know that this is it if you do it so Penny wants it."

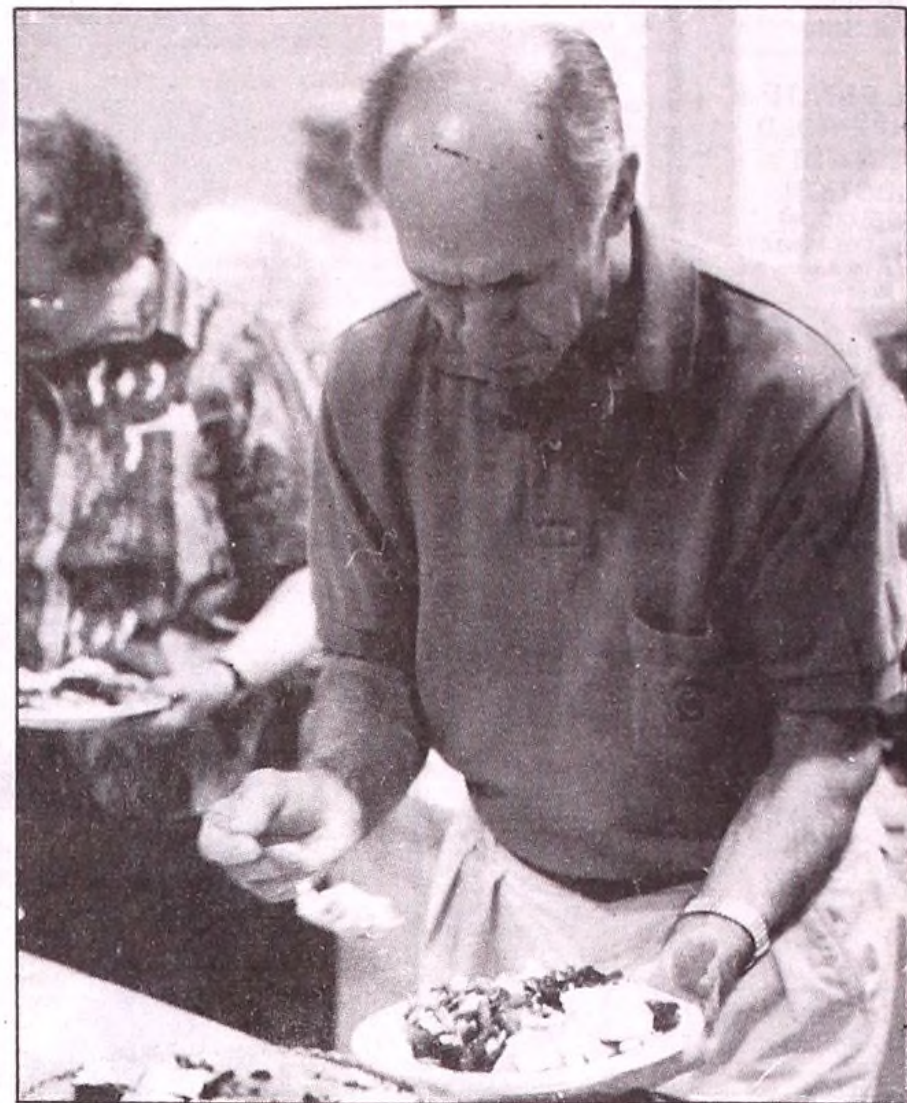

Marshall had been considering three other scripts at the same time Burnstein's Renaissance Man was being given attention.

"You feel like you're in a horse race," Burnstein said. "I heard Penny liked the script very much, and she wanted to do it before the other three she was considering if she could get Danny DeVito to play the lead role."

The script landed on DeVito's lap Mother's Day weekend in 1993.

"He got it on a Friday and by Monday he had said 'Yes,'" Burnstein said. "And now something that took a decade suddenly moves at warp speed."

Burnstein said he's not surprised by Renaissance Man finally coming to fruition. What he is most surprised about is that he managed to put together two things he enjoys the most—teaching and writing.

School vice principal charged with larceny

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

John Glenn High School Assistant Principal Michael Herman Bartley, who is accused of taking $55 from the high school office safe after hours, was arraigned on charges of larceny from a building in Westland 18th District Court Thursday.

Bartley, a 39-year-old Detroit resident, has been employed with the Wayne-Westland School District since his departure as assistant principal from a Detroit public middle school, according to district Assistant Superintendent Gary Dell.

Bartley resigned from his position at Cerveny Middle School in Detroit after being suspended when a written complaint was filed against him for allegedly using excessive force against a student. According to Detroit school officials, Bartley did not request a tenure hearing and was suspended from his position by the Detroit School Board. He submitted his resignation Sept. 13, 1993.

According to Wayne-Westland School Board President Francis Winter, Wayne-Westland Superintendent of Schools Dr. Larry Thomas notified board members that Bartley had been suspended from the Detroit school.

"I said ... it's not in our best interest to hire a person that has been suspended from another district. He also was not certified as a secondary teacher," Winter said.

Winter said Bartley was later certified, but added that he told Thomas that, "a cloud would be over Mr. Bartley when he came to the district," because of the suspension.

Bartley, who was released on a $5,000 personal conditional bond, is not allowed to return to the school while under suspension by the district. Bartley was "relieved of his duties" at the school following the discovery of the alleged crime on video tape.

$9,995. Because there's no such thing as disposable income.

The Saturn SL

No matter what income bracket they're in, it's hard to believe that anyone would consider any of their money disposable. Which may explain why we all want to buy things that are actually worth what they cost. Like the Saturn SL. It has the kind of technology you'd find on a more expensive car, like a steel spaceframe with crumple zones, flexible paint and panels that resist chipping, and even a stainless steel exhaust system. Because if there's one thing that's not disposable, it's money.

M.S.R.P. of the 1994 SL is $9995 including dealer preparation. Tax, license, transportation and options additional.

Restaurant specializes in catering

BY LAURIE HUMPHREY
ANP Staff Writer

Nearing 20 years of operation in the community, Jerome MacDonald said business has been increasing every year at Maria's Italian Pizzeria, Bakery and Party Store.

Located on the corner of Hagerty Road and Cherry Hill in Canton Township since 1976, Maria's has attracted customers to the 11,000 square-foot shop from throughout the tri-county area.

"We offer everything," said MacDonald, the store manager. "Rick Cervi started this shop from scratch and now we offer a deli, bakery, full-line grocery and cater parties."

Open Sunday from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Thursday 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. and from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday, the manager said business has been great.

"The whole store has been real busy, but the catering has been the most popular," he said. "We cater graduations, weddings, baptisms...everything, but we ask for a 48-hour notice."

Consumers have the opportunity to select their own menus, said MacDonald, from a wide selection of meats, salads and cheeses.

"We have ribs, pasta, chicken, spiral hams, subs, salads and cheese plates," he said. "And we keep our prices pretty reasonable."

For a limited time, VIP customers can receive a 10-percent discount on catering services. Card holders can also receive two loaves of homemade Italian bread for the price of one every Monday.

According to MacDonald, customer satisfaction is a primary and attainable goal.

"Sixty-percent of our customers are every-day customers," he said. "They come here from Westland, Novi and Redford because of the specialty items and because the product is outstanding."
